Worden Walks Outside Apollo

Space Center, Houston (AP) — Alfred M. Worden floated in space nearly 200,000 miles from earth Thursday, gliding with a cautious grace to retrieve film canisters from the rear of the homeward-bound Apollo 15 spacecraft.

Worden was the first man to walk in deep space.

"This is really the most unbelievable, remarkable thing," he said of the theater of sun, stars, sky and moon around him.

Wearing a heavy protective space suit and helmet, Worden made three trips between the cabin door and a panel of instruments and cameras. He recovered two film cassettes containing almost two miles of moon mapping photos. His third trip to the outside bay was to inspect the $17-million equipment.

Aimed Cameras

Crewmates David R. Scott and James B. Irwin remained in the cabin of the command ship Endeavour, also wearing suits to protect them against the vacuum of space. But Irwin stuck his head and shoulders out the cabin's hatch door to aim television and photo cameras at the space walker.

Worden was anchored to the spacecraft by a white safety line as he moved cautiously 15 feet down handrails on the outside, his legs and body floating in the vacuum.

Worden looked back at Irwin and saw that he was silhouetted against the moon, 48,000 miles behind the fleeting spacecraft.

"Jim," said Worden, "You look absolutely fantastic against that moon back there."

The space walker left the cabin at 10:40 a.m. CDT and was back in, the job completed, just 18 minutes later.

His first trip took less than five minutes.

"Okay, Houston," he said as he passed inside a 72-pound, box-shaped canister, "the pancamera film is safely inside."

"Beautiful job, Al, baby," said Mission Control. "Remember there's no hurry up there at all."

"Rog," said Worden, "I'm enjoying it."

He scurried back and returned to the space cabin with the second canister of film, a 23-pound package containing more than 3,000 feet of mapping film.

'Anything Else?'

"The mapping camera cassette is inside," he called, and then added hopefully, "Is there anything else you want me to check before we go back in?"

"Al," said Mission Control, "We'd be pleased to have any general comments you have about the experiments."

"Maybe I can just take another quick check here," said Worden and floated back to the instrument bay.

During his inspections he found a camera that failed to retract properly and an instrument cover that had not jettisoned fully. Neither irregularity affected their performance, Mission Control engineers said.

"Al," said Scott, the moon mission commander, "You should have stayed longer."

Scientists hope the film canisters Worden recovered will contain the best high-resolution photos of the moon ever taken. The camera system was designed to map almost 20% of the lunar surface, including the best pictures yet of the moon's hidden backside.

WAITING FOR BUS . . . many elderly seem 'really bored.'

Young Lincolnite Films 'Passively Angry' Aged

By WAYNE KREUSCHER
Star Staff Writer

"Bored" and "passively angry" are two phrases that a young Lincolnite uses to describe many of the elderly in Lincoln who are subjects of his first film documentary.

The "old people" documentary, planned, mostly financed and partly photographed by Joel Davis, 23, is scheduled to be televised on Nebraska Educational Television (NETV) Aug. 27 at 8:30 p.m.

Davis, a recent University of Nebraska advertising graduate, has spent the last several months taking still photos of his film's elderly subjects in their homes, on streets and in parks.

Still Photos Cheaper

He is paying for most of the documentary with his own money so he has been taking still photos instead of using a camera film crew. The still photos will be videotaped by NETV.

The young man, who works for a Lincoln advertising firm and has had several years of journalism experience, decided to make a documentary on Lincoln's elderly while taking a NU independent study film course.

He wasn't satisfied, however, with just making a film for class. So, with the help of his teacher, Mrs. June Levine, he enlisted the aid of NETV in making a film that could be televised.

'Make People Aware'

Old people have many problems," Davis said, "and I want to make people aware of them."

During most of his home interviews, which he taped, Davis was accompanied by Mrs. Lois Ullstrom of the Lincoln Action Program.

Most of the people "would be suspicious of me at first" and hesitant to talk or have their pictures taken, he said, "but it didn't take long for most to warm up."

"Sometimes, they would really talk about their problems," he said.

Davis recalled "not feeling I'd gotten much" from the interview of an elderly blind woman "until afterwards when listening to the tape again I heard her asking me how her garden looked."

Pulled It Together

"This question brought the whole program together for me," he explained.

Davis said some of the elderly he talked with were happy, content and active.

But far too many others, he noted, seemed "really bored."

"Compulsory leisure seems to be almost a prison," he explained. "After retiring, these people did all the things they'd always wanted to do in the first couple of months and now they sit around watching TV all day."

'Passively Angry'

Davis said that many also seemed to be "passively angry" about the "role they're told they have to play as old people."

"If you think of old people as a minority group, they have to be the most downtrodden minority there is," he said.

He recalled that after telling some of them they might see themselves on television, several answered, "I'll be dead by then."

Many Moods Captured

Davis' still photos feature many elderly faces. They illustrate both the older persons who are active and happy and those who have problems such as inadequate housing and poor nutrition.

The videotaped TV program will alternate the still photos and taped interviews with a panel discussion about the elderly. The panel will include persons who work with the elderly in the state.

Davis explained that the still "flips" will be used to illustrate subjects discussed by the panel.

National Lottery Decides Order

... CUTOFF FIGURE UNKNOWN

Washington (AP) — Men born Dec. 4, Jan. 25 and Dec. 15, in 1952 were assigned Nos. 1, 2 and 3 respectively in Thursday's draft lottery to head the line facing possible call to military service next year.

The outlook for nearly 2 million men turning 19 years old this year was decided in two hours of taking capsules from two plexiglass drums and matching birthdates with Nos. 1 through 366.

It was the third national draft lottery. The men who got numbers last year and the year before are not affected by this year's drawing. They keep the numbers they received then, as long as they face the draft.

Extension Expected

Although the President's authority to draft men expired June 30, the lottery for next year's callup was held because the law governing it remains in effect. Congress is expected to vote a two-year extension of the draft authority after it returns from a month-long recess that begins Friday.

Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr started the latest lottery by noting that draft calls have been "significantly lower" this year than in the past.

He added "in 1972 — the year in which most of the men whose numbers have drawn today will be eligible for induction — we expect that the draft calls will be even lower."

The callup this year is expected to be well below the 195 draft number reached last year. But draft officials would not guess where the final cutoff might be, saying it depends on the military manpower situation.

Capsules Drawn

Six young advisers to Selective Service drew the brown and yellow capsules. By coincidence No. 1 and Dec. 4 were drawn as a matching pair by Valerie Van Buren of Washington, D.C., and J. Brewster Bede of Morton, Washington. They started the parade by matching June 20 with No. 30 and Sept. 2 with No. 7.

The young people, in pairs, took turns drawing the capsules out and handing them to the announcers.

May birthdates drew more low numbers than any other month. In the lower third of 366, it got 16.

The suspenseful No. 1 was late in coming, on the 310th draw, as were most of the very low numbers. The highest number, 366, didn't come until draw 339 and was tied to Nov. 1.

There were 366 numbers because 1952 was a leap year and those born on Feb. 29 drew a safe 365.

Court Decides Ky Not Eligible To Run

Saigon (AP) — South Vietnam's Supreme Court disqualified Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky Thursday as a candidate in the presidential elections, narrowing the field to President Nguyen Van Thieu and retired Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh.

The court ruled Ky failed to qualify because 39 of his 102 endorsements duplicated those already given to Thieu, and thus were invalid. Ky needed 100 to gain a place on the ballot for the Oct. 3 election.

Shortly after being notified of the court's ruling, Ky said he had made no decision as to what action he would take next.

Minh repeated his threat to withdraw from the presidential race and leave Thieu as the sole candidate.

'Under Surveillance'

In a statement issued by his press secretary, Minh said reports from the countryside showed that his campaign workers "have been kept under surveillance and terrorized."

"These actions show that the elections have not been clean from the start," Minh declared. "Because of this critical situation, we feel it is necessary for us to reconsider our candidacy."

Minh is in a position to embarrass both Thieu and the U.S. mission if he withdraws and leaves the president as the sole candidate.

Th U.S. Embassy is known to be worried that Minh might pull out and turn the election into what one American official called Thursday a "colossal farce."

Under the election law Ky can appeal the court's decision within seven days after that. The final list of candidates — to which there is no challenge — will be posted Aug. 24.

Ky Makes Charge

Ky has charged that Thieu coerced province and city councilmen to sign blank forms even before the election law was promulgated or Thieu declared his candidacy, and that these endorsements are therefore illegal.

He had asked that the court allow the 39 councilmen concerned to annul their endorsements of Thieu and sign his petition instead.

He also has accused Thieu of blocking his candidacy, saying the president had ordered province chiefs and mayors not to certify his endorsements.

Speculation in Saigon centered on what Ky will do now, and on whether or when Minh will withdraw.

Reports circulated in Saigon Thursday night that Ky had been arrested, but an aide said: "He's playing tennis."

The weekly "Ely Fish Facts" publication reported "this past week we received reports of bare or partially bare women being seen on Basswood, Fall, Farm and Bald Eagle Lakes and one gentleman and his family encountered some on one of the portages. New NU Official Plans More Urban Thrust

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

An upgraded, system-wide emphasis and a new urban-oriented thrust are in the works for the University of Nebraska Graduate School of Social Work.

That was the word this week from UNL Dean of Faculties C. Peter Magrath and Dr. Theodore Ernst, who has just assumed direction of the school.

Ernst, who has been associate dean of the School of Social Welfare at the State University of New York, Buffalo, formally assumes his new job Aug. 15.

Getting Oriented

But he spent the last week-and-a-half here orienting himself to the NU system and preparing for the move from New York later in the month.

"I am here now with a clear view of my responsibilities as being toward the (university) system," the new director said during an interview with him and Magrath.

"Dr. Ernst was brought here with the explicit understanding that his efforts were to be toward the total university system," Magrath agreed.

New UNO Courses

With that change in mind, the university will begin to offer this fall graduate-level courses on the campus of the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

The new Omaha program, with 25 part-time masters degree candidates, will be taught by three members of the UNO department of sociology.

Ernst said full-time graduate courses are expected to start in Omaha in no more than two years.

Meanwhile, he said, the city of Omaha's sources for field experience will be tapped more heavily than ever before.

"The school in the past has not made as much use of Omaha as it might," he said.

'Cannot Remain Rural'

"The school cannot remain a rural school," he added, when "there is a large urban situation with all the urban problems" just 50 miles away.

Though the graduate school has been known as a "rural school, Ernst said he would prefer to describe it in terms of the kind of problems it has dealt with.

"Now, the school focuses on family disorganization and breakdown and on mental health," he noted. He said he wants the school to expand into "other problem areas" such as housing and the lack of opportunity for minority groups.

'Human Realization'

To meet modern challenges, Ernst said, students must be prepared "not just for the picking-up-the-pieces job or treatment and not even for just prevention, but also for human realization."

While he believes social workers with bachelor's degrees will continue to be needed for traditional one-to-one counseling, he said master's degree candidates are going to have to be prepared to "plan human services."

Ernst said there are no immediate plans to increase the school's enrollment, which stands at about 90 now. The school is one of about 80 in the nation, and it offers only the master's degree.

Ernst and Magrath said they are confident the school will always get its share of federal funds, whatever they may be, but they said anticipated cutbacks in federal financial help will force either a cutback in programs or an increase in state support for the school.

At the moment, federal training funds pay 6 of the 14 faculty members in Lincoln. The Nixon administration has announced it will cut back those funds sharply in about a year.

Lincoln Administration

Ernst and Magrath also said administration of the graduate school will be left in Lincoln for now, even though a new urban orientation will be emphasized.

Wherever administration eventually ends up, they said, both undergraduate and graduate courses will be offered at both UNO and UNL, and the medical campus will be used for important lab experiences.

Magrath said he is "very confident about the future of the school in accreditation," noting that the school has been operating under the watchful eye of the national Council on Social Work Education, which cited a number of deficiencies a few years ago.

"We will be in a position in mid-fall to give an adequate answer" to the council, he said.

'Human Realization'

To meet modern challenges, Ernst said, students must be prepared "not just for the picking-up-the-pieces job or treatment and not even for just prevention, but also for human realization."

While he believes social workers with bachelor's degrees will continue to be needed for traditional one-to-one counseling, he said master's degree candidates are going to have to be prepared to "plan human services."

Ernst said there are no immediate plans to increase the school's enrollment, which stands at about 90 now. The school is one of about 20 in the nation, and it offers only the master's degree.

Ernst and Magrath said they are confident the school will always get its share of federal funds, whatever they may be, but they said anticipated cutbacks in federal financial help will force either a cutback in programs or an increase in state support for the school.

At the moment, federal training funds pay 6 of the 14 faculty members in Lincoln. The Nixon administration has announced it will cut back those funds sharply in about a year.

Lincoln Administration

Ernst and Magrath also said administration of the graduate school will be left in Lincoln for now, even though a new urban orientation will be emphasized.

Wherever administration eventually ends up, they said, both undergraduate and graduate courses will be offered at both UNO and UNL, and the medical campus will be used for important lab experiences.

Magrath said he is "very confident about the future of the school in accreditation," noting that the school has been operating under the watchful eye of the national Council on Social Work Education, which cited a number of deficiencies a few years ago.

"We will be in a position in mid-fall to give an adequate answer" to the council, he said.

SAS Denies U.S. Military Asked Plane To Fly 187 POWs To Europe

Stockholm (AP) — Scandinavian Airlines denied Thursday that U.S. military officials had asked it to fly 187 Americans held prisoner by North Vietnam to Europe.
A statement by Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS) said the line was approached in West Germany by a private person in mid-July who wanted to arrange a charter flight from Laos to Rome for 187 passengers, but the individual called off the arrangements later.
"It was never mentioned that the category of passengers was military personnel," SAS added.
The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter first published the report that the flight would carry U.S. prisoners held in North Vietnam, bringing denials from U.S. and North Vietnamese officials.
An SAS official in Rome agreed the contact was made in West Germany but added he did not know the name or nationality of the individual requesting the charter flight.
Earlier, an SAS spokesman in Stockholm said U.S. military authorities in West Germany had asked to charter a DC8 to fly the American prisoners from Laos.

SAS said this statement had come "from somebody not sufficiently informed who, being pulled out of bed at the break of day, said yes and no in the wrong places."
The consensus of Swedish news media was that there was some kind of substance to the reports but that the parties concerned were lying low.
"In matters of this kind," said the state radio in a commentary, "those involved usually have a preconceived plan of issuing denials if the story breaks too soon. In this instance, denials from the North Vietnamese mission here and from the Paris peace talks delegation came remarkably fast."
Reports from Laos said Sweden or Belgium may have been involved in trying to free the prisoners, but this was denied by the Swedish and Belgian governments.

Proposed Treaty Would Ban All Bacteriological Weapons

... U.S., SOVIETS AGREE TO DESTROY STOCKS

(C) Washington Star

Geneva — The United States and the Soviet Union Thursday jointly proposed a sweeping treaty to ban all biological weapons and destroy existing stocks.

In a major breakthrough at the intermittent 13-year-old Geneva Disarmament Conference, the two superpowers once again demonstrated their ability to work together in crucial matters.

The draft treaty was presented by ambassador James F. Leonard for the United States and Alexei Roshchin for the Soviet Union at the 527th plenary meeting of the conference in Geneva's Palais des Nations.

Significant Milestone

Both officials hailed the 14-article draft as a significant milestone and called on the conference participants to accept it.

The draft will be submitted to the United Nations General Assembly when it meets in New York in September.

Presentation of the proposed treaty to ban bacteriological weapons and toxins comes against a background of hints toward an agreement at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks in Helsinki and some conciliatory Russian moves on the issue of Berlin.

The over-all tendency would indicate a considerable easing of tension between the two power blocs and a more concerted effort on the part of the superpowers to stop the spiraling arms race.

In presenting the proposed treaty, the United States and the Soviet Union stated they acted "with a view of achieving effective progress toward general and complete disarmament including the prohibition and elimination of all types of weapons of mass destruction."

"Scientific discoveries in the field of bacteriology must in the interest of all mankind be used solely for peaceful purposes," the preamble to the proposed treaty added.

The draft treaty calls on its adherents to undertake "not to develop, produce, stockpile or otherwise acquire or retain microbial or other biological agents or toxins of types and in quantities that have no justification or prophylactic or other peaceful purposes" as well as "weapons, equipment or means of delivery designed to use such agents or toxins for hostile purposes or in armed conflict."

The signatories of the treaty undertake to destroy or "to divert to peaceful purposes" their stocks of biological weapons. Although the time for destruction was left blank in the treaty, conference sources said they expect a three-month limit.

The parties to the convention undertake not to transfer their stocks or know how to other countries and pledge to remain in consultation "on the fullest possible exchange of equipment, materials and scientific and technological information" for the peaceful uses of bacteriological agents.

'Not Perfect'

Both Leonard and Roshchin said the draft was "not a perfect one" and further improvements were possible.

"This is a new field," Leonard told newsmen. "We are not merely trying to prevent armaments but eliminating weapons which already exist."

He said the U.S. had started destruction of its bacteriological stockpiles and expects to complete the process in 14 months.

The joint draft represents a considerable reversal of Moscow's previous position which was to link the ban on bacteriological with one on chemical weapons, presumably because of reports of the use of chemical weapons by the United States in Vietnam.

Nevertheless, Thursday Roshchin stressed that the two weapons systems should be linked together "as a means of abolishing all weapons of mass destruction."

Missiles Installed?

Washington (UPI) — The Defense Department said Red China probably had installed for the first time a few missiles with a range of 1,000 miles, which might be capable of hitting targets such as Japan, India or the Soviet Union.

Harris Hopes Connally Will Be Nixon's Choice

... For Running Mate In 1972 Election

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha — Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma Thursday predicted that President Nixon will choose Secretary of the Treasury John Connally as his vice presidential running mate in 1972.

"I hope he does," Harris told a news conference.

That, he said, would allow Democrats to focus on "the tragically failing economic game plan" of the Nixon administration.

Connally, he noted, is "not my kind of Democrat."

Harris came to Omaha for a

One-Car Crash Near Ceresco Kills Ithaca Girl

An Ithaca girl died at Lincoln General Hospital Thursday night of injuries received in a one-car crash 1.3 miles south of Ceresco on U.S. 77 earlier in the evening, according to deputy county attorney Bernie McGinn.

McGinn said Pam Hass, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hass of Ithaca, was taken to the hospital by the Wahoo rescue unit after the car she was driving left the roadway and struck a bridge.

She died in the intensive care unit of the hospital a few hours after the accident, McGinn said.

7-Year-Old Boy Accident Victim

Sidney (UPI) — A 7-year-old Sidney boy was killed when struck by a car here late Thursday.

His identity was being withheld by officials until his grandmother could be notified.

Authorities say the boy was returning home with two sisters when he was struck by a car driven by Dan M. Mines, 18, of Sidney.

Diller Man, 66, Killed In Crash Near Steele City

A 66-year-old Diller man was killed early Thursday afternoon in a two-car accident three miles east and two miles south of Steele City, according to the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office.

Officials said Willy Mueller died of injuries he received when the car he was driving was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Fred Cercle, 52, of Hollenberg Kan.

The Mueller vehicle was westbound and the Cercle car was southbound at the time of the accident.

9-Year-Old Boy Falls Down Shaft, Listed As 'Fair'

A 9-year-old Lincoln boy was listed in "fair" condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital with injuries he received when he fell 15 feet down an elevator shaft in a new library under construction at 56th and Normal, according to Police Officer Martin Roach.

Roach said Daniel Burt, son of Sandra Burt of 5105 Glade, suffered a brain concussion and numerous scrapes when he accidentally fell into the shaft while playing with several other children in the building.

Tests To Begin

Papeete, Tahiti (UPI) — A new series of nuclear test explosions will begin, French government officials announced. The testing area will center around the island of Mururoa.

day to "test further the possibility of becoming a serious candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination."

Harris is conducting what he has termed an "exploratory" campaign designed to discover whether he has sufficient support to make a run at the nomination.

"If I find that I am being listened to, that my words will be heard, then I will run," he said.

In that case, he said, he would enter the presidential primaries. He has already decided he would seriously campaign in Florida, New Mexico and California.

"I hope to make a similar decision about Nebraska," he noted.

Harris and his wife, La Donna, flew to Omaha from Denver, where they met with Nebraska labor leaders, met with local news media representatives during the day and held a public reception.

During the afternoon, Mrs. Harris, who is part Comanche Indian, went to Macy where she spoke at the powwow.

The senator, 40, won his seat in 1964 with an upset victory over former Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson. He is a former Democratic national chairman.

Harris hopes to form a "new populist coalition" composed of many groups of Americans who have been "made to feel they have adverse interests."

What they need to insist upon is "a redistribution of the good things in our society," Harris said, as well as a reallocation of power.

A third demand, he suggested, should be that "idealism be the basis of our foreign policy."

Harris said the Vietnam war and economic issues will determine the 1972 elections.

The Oklahoman supports "a pre-announced systematic timetable for complete withdrawal" of U.S. troops and formation of a wage and price board at home.

The latter should have power to institute wage and price freezes up to six months in duration "to shock the economy back to normal," he said.

America now suffers from "intolerable inflation" and "needless joblessness," he said.

Although he believes Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine is "way out in front now," Harris said, no Democratic presidential prospect has yet stirred enthusiastic support.

And none of them has voiced "the tone of moral outrage that ought to be heard about the things that are wrong in this country," he said.

That's why Harris is now exploring his prospects, he said, leading toward what he hopes will be a final decision this autumn.

In any event, he is not available for the vice presidential nomination, he said. "It's a terrible office."

Jansen Accident Victim Identified As Mrs. Wilhelm

Jansen (UPI) — The Jefferson County sheriff's office Thursday identified the victim of a one-car accident one mile east of here on Nebraska 36 as Mrs. Alvin Wilhelm, 49, of Jansen.

The mishap occurred late Wednesday morning when the car, driven by the victim's 14-year-old daughter, Janice, apparently went out of control and rolled over after hitting a chuckhole. Neither Janice nor her brother, Ronald, 17, were hurt seriously.

Sheriff Clyde Kellie at Fairbury said Janice did not have a driver's permit, and was driving with the permission of her mother.

Columbus Judge Will Hear Ames Plaza Bank Trial

Omaha (AP) — Two young St. Paul, Minn., men go on trial here Monday in connection with the attempted robbery of the Ames Plaza Bank last Oct. 20.

The two, Ronald L. Reed, 20, and Larry L. Clark, 19, are charged with felonious entry of a bank, shooting a policeman with intent to kill, wound or maim and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

District Court Judge C. Thomas White of Columbus will hear the case. Judge White said he will hear the case as "reparation" for two cases that Douglas County District Court Judge John Murphy heard in Columbus after Judge White was disqualified from them.

Hart Defends Unannounced Meeting In Chambers Case

Omaha (AP) — Omaha School Board president Joseph Hart Jr. defended the use of an unannounced meeting in the Eddie Chambers case.

At the meeting Tuesday the board decided not to rehire Chambers as a counselor at Omaha Technical Junior High School.

The so-called open meeting law passed by the legislature in 1967 requires formal actions by public bodies to be open to the public.

Hart said he did not consider the board's decision on Chambers to be a "formal action" but he did consider it official. He said the action was a "reconsideration of a previous formal action," the decision by Supt. Owen Knutzen not to rehire Chambers.

Chambers' attorney Richard Fellman said he had not looked at the case from a legal standpoint but said he thought the meeting should have been public.

Theodore J. Johnson, executive director of the Urban Action Association, said the board "blundered" by not having an open meeting.

He said, "most people will interpret this as more high-handed action by the school board and the administration. It will not be tolerated well or accepted well in our community."

Hart said the decision "was handled this way so we could deliberate this on the merits of the testimony without the emotion from outside sources."

At a news conference in Omaha later shared with his brother.

He declared the decision of the board not to rehire him is an act of reprisal. He outlined some of the constructive things he said he had done and he contended he was terminated because of his interest in the general health, education and welfare of the students and the community.

Peterson Coming To U.S. In Fall

Washington (AP) — State Department officials said that Val Peterson, the U.S. ambassador to Finland, is due to return here in September for consultations and home leave.

Peterson, the former governor of Nebraska is expected to visit his home state. He has served in Helsinki since July, 1969.

Area Needs To Attract Young People

... Team Told

Alliance (AP) — An advance team of investigators laying the groundwork for a hearing in Lincoln Sept. 9 by Nebraska Sen. Carl T. Curtis and Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey were told by Alliance spokesmen that the primary need in northwest Nebraska is to make the area more attractive to young people, principally in the area of jobs.

A hearing will be held by the senators, one Republican and one Democrat, to take the pulse of the state in rural development issues.

Don Shasteen, administrative assistant to Curtis, Nebraska Republican; Dan Spiegel, Humphrey aide, and Jim Thornton, former aide to Orville Freeman when Freeman was secretary of agriculture, were on the flying trip through the state.

The three talked to Keith Kemper of the Alliance Times-Herald; Mayor Neil Colerick, Chamber of Commerce President Bob Chadwick and Chamber manager Kay Mooney while in Alliance.

The three flew to Sidney and McCook from Alliance.

Curtis said earlier the purpose of the hearings is to seek means through which the federal government can stimulate creation of more jobs in lightly populated and primarily agricultural areas.

Thornton suggested persuading city dwellers to move to the country.

Leslie Derieg's Services Monday

Services for Leslie Derieg of Lovell, Wyo., a former Lincoln resident who died Wednesday of a heart attack, will be held Monday in Lovell.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Sigma Chi Fraternity, Mr. Derieg is survived by a wife, Fern; a son, Dan; a daughter, Mrs. Max Moncur, and a sister, Mrs. Glenn Brown of Lincoln.

Wilber Czechs To Honor Chicago Builder Stastny

Wilber — John Anton Stastny of Chicago, president of the National Association of Home Builders, has been selected for the third annual King Charles Award by the Nebraska Czechs of Wilber.

The award, established to recognize achievements which reflect credit on the Czech heritage, will be presented to Stastny at the Wilber Czech Festival this weekend.

Previous recipients were Astronaut Eugene Cernan and Nebraska Sen. Roman Hruska.

As head of the 54,000-member home builders association, Stastny, 50, is the spokesman for the industry before congressional committees, governmental agencies and the general public. Speaking engagements take him over the nation, and he has testified before congressional committees at least two dozen times this year.

JOHN A. STASTNY
To Receive Award

A third-generation Chicago builder, Stastny is a former president of the Chicago Home Builders Association, also an appointee to Chicago commissions on human relations and urban renewal, and has served on national and presidential committees and boards.

His wife is the former Betty Ossowski of Beatrice. They have one son and one daughter.

Stastny's grandfather, who immigrated to Chicago from a village near Tabor, Czechoslovakia, held Chicago Master Mason License No. 1, and Stastny's father was also a Chicago builder.

Northern Wins Rate Hike OK, But Refund Also Is Ordered

Washington (AP) — Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha, Neb., has won approval for a $22 million a year rate increase, but the firm must pay millions of dollars in refunds to its customers.

The Federal Power Commission has accepted an agreement permitting the firm to boost its wholesale natural gas rates by $22 million a year, a figure $16 million a year below the rate increase sought.

In June 1970 Northern proposed to increase its rates by about $38 million annually. The FPC suspended that proposal until Dec. 27, 1970, when it went into effect, subject to refund.

The agreed upon settlement is effective as of the same date.

Northern must now refund to its customers the difference between the rates it has charged since last December and the rates permitted under the settlement.

The agreement calls for Northern to make refunds to its customers if its actual average cost of purchased gas for the entire year of 1971 is less than the company's anticipated average gas costs of 16.68 cents per thousand cubic feet.

The agreement doesn't permit Northern to include in its rate base advance payments and related carrying charges for its Canada-Montana pipeline construction project.

The settlement does permit Northern to capitalize carrying charges on the advance payments, which the FPC doesn't normally allow.

... For Running Mate In 1972 Election

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha — Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma Thursday predicted that President Nixon will choose Secretary of the Treasury John Connally as his vice presidential running mate in 1972.

"I hope he does," Harris told a news conference.

That, he said, would allow Democrats to focus on "the tragically failing economic game plan" of the Nixon administration.

Connally, he noted, is "not my kind of Democrat."

Harris came to Omaha for a

One-Car Crash Near Ceresco Kills Ithaca Girl

An Ithaca girl died at Lincoln General Hospital Thursday night of injuries received in a one-car crash 1.3 miles south of Ceresco on U.S. 77 earlier in the evening, according to deputy county attorney Bernie McGinn.

McGinn said Pam Hass, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hass of Ithaca, was taken to the hospital by the Wahoo rescue unit after the car she was driving left the roadway and struck a bridge.

She died in the intensive care unit of the hospital a few hours after the accident, McGinn said.

7-Year-Old Boy Accident Victim

Sidney (UPI) — A 7-year-old Sidney boy was killed when struck by a car here late Thursday.

His identity was being withheld by officials until his grandmother could be notified.

Authorities say the boy was returning home with two sisters when he was struck by a car driven by Dan M. Mines, 18, of Sidney.

Diller Man, 66, Killed In Crash Near Steele City

A 66-year-old Diller man was killed early Thursday afternoon in a two-car accident three miles east and two miles south of Steele City, according to the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office.

Officials said Willy Mueller died of injuries he received when the car he was driving was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Fred Cercle, 52, of Hollenberg, Kan.

The Mueller vehicle was westbound and the Cercle car was southbound at the time of the accident.

9-Year-Old Boy Falls Down Shaft, Listed As 'Fair'

A 9-year-old Lincoln boy was listed in "fair" condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital with injuries he received when he fell 15 feet down an elevator shaft in a new library under construction at 56th and Normal, according to Police Officer Martin Roach.

Roach said Daniel Burt, son of Sandra Burt of 5105 Glade, suffered a brain concussion and numerous scrapes when he accidentally fell into the shaft while playing with several other children in the building.

Tests To Begin

day to "test further the possibility of becoming a serious candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination."

Harris is conducting what he has termed an "exploratory" campaign designed to discover whether he has sufficient support to make a run at the nomination.

"If I find that I am being listened to, that my words will be heard, then I will run," he said.

In that case, he said, he would enter the presidential primaries. He has already decided he would seriously campaign in Florida, New Mexico and California.

"I hope to make a similar decision about Nebraska," he noted.

Harris and his wife, La Donna, flew to Omaha from Denver, where they had a press conference with Nebraska labor leaders, met with local news media representatives during the day and held a public reception.

During the afternoon, Mrs. Harris, who is part Comanche Indian, went to Macy's where she spoke at the powwow.

Jansen Accident Victim Identified As Mrs. Wilhelm

Jansen (UPI) — The Jefferson County sheriff's office Thursday identified the victim of a one-car accident one mile east of here on Nebraska 36 as Mrs. Alvin Wilhelm, 49, of Jansen.

The mishap occurred late Wednesday morning when the car, driven by the victim's 14-year-old daughter, Janice, apparently went out of control and rolled over after hitting a chuckhole. Neither Janice nor her brother, Ronald, 17, were hurt seriously.

Sheriff Clyde Kellie at Fairbury said Janice did not have a driver's permit, and was driving with the permission of her mother.

Columbus Judge Will Hear Ames Plaza Bank Trial

Omaha (AP) — Two young St. Paul, Minn., men go on trial here Monday in connection with the attempted robbery of the Ames Plaza Bank last Oct. 20.

The two, Ronald L. Reed, 20, and Larry L. Clark, 19, are charged with felonious entry of a bank, shooting a policeman with intent to kill, wound or maim and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

District Court Judge C. Thomas White of Columbus will hear the case. Judge White said he will hear the case as "reparation" for two cases that Douglas County District Court Judge John Murphy heard in Columbus after Judge White was disqualified from them.

Hart Defends Unannounced Meeting In Chambers Case

Omaha (AP) — Omaha School Board president Joseph Hart Jr. defended the use of an unannounced meeting in the Eddie Chambers case.

At the meeting Tuesday the board decided not to rehire Chambers as a counselor at Omaha Technical Junior High School.

The so-called open meeting law passed by the legislature in 1967 requires formal actions by public bodies to be open to the public.

Hart said he did not consider the board's decision on Chambers to be a "formal action" but he did consider it official. He said the action was a "reconsideration of a previous formal action," the decision by Supt. Owen Knutzen not to rehire Chambers.

Chambers' attorney Richard Fellman said he had not looked at the case from a legal standpoint but said he thought the meeting should have been public.

Theodore J. Johnson, executive director of the Urban Action Association, said the board "blundered" by not having an open meeting.

He said, "most people will interpret this as more high-handed action by the school board and the administration. It will not be tolerated well or accepted well in our community."

Hart said the decision "was handled this way so we could deliberate this on the merits of the testimony without the emotion from outside sources."

At a news conference in Omaha later shared with his brother.

Peterson Coming To U.S. In Fall

Washington (AP) — State Department officials said that Val Peterson, the U.S. ambassador to Finland, is due to return here in September for consultations and home leave.

Peterson, the former governor of Nebraska, is expected to visit his home state. He has served in Helsinki since July, 1969.

Area Needs To Attract Young People

... Team Told

Alliance (AP) — An advance team of investigators laying the groundwork for a hearing in Lincoln Sept. 9 by Nebraska Sen. Carl T. Curtis and Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey were told by Alliance spokesmen that the primary need in northwest Nebraska is to make the area more attractive to young people, principally in the area of jobs.

A hearing will be held by the senators, one Republican and one Democrat, to take the pulse of the state in rural development issues.

Don Shasteen, administrative assistant to Curtis, Nebraska Republican; Dan Spiegel, Humphrey aide, and Jim Thornton, former aide to Orville Freeman when Freeman was secretary of agriculture, were on the flying trip through the state.

The three talked to Keith Kemper of the Alliance Times-Herald; Mayor Neil Colerick, Chamber of Commerce President Bob Chadwick and Chamber manager Kay Mooney while in Alliance.

The three flew to Sidney and McCook from Alliance. Curtis said earlier the purpose of the hearings is to seek means through which the federal government can stimulate creation of more jobs in lightly populated and primarily agricultural areas.

Thornton suggested persuading city dwellers to move to the country.

Leslie Derieg's Services Monday

Services for Leslie Derieg of Lovell, Wyo., a former Lincoln resident who died Wednesday of a heart attack, will be held Monday in Lovell.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Sigma Chi fraternity, Mr. Derieg is survived by a wife, Fern; a son, Dan; a daughter, Mrs. Max Moncur, and a sister, Mrs. Glenn Brown of Lincoln.

Wilber Czechs To Honor Chicago Builder Stastny

Wilber — John Anton Stastny of Chicago, president of the National Association of Home Builders, has been selected for the third annual King Charles Award by the Nebraska Czechs of Wilber.

The award, established to recognize achievements which reflect credit on the Czech heritage, will be presented to Stastny at the Wilber Czech Festival this weekend.

Previous recipients were Astronaut Eugene Cernan and Nebraska Sen. Roman Hruska.

As head of the 54,000-member home builders association, Stastny, 50, is the spokesman for the industry before congressional committees, governmental agencies and the general public. Speaking engagements take him over the nation, and he has testified before congressional committees at least two dozen times this year.

JOHN A. STASTNY To Receive Award

A third-generation Chicago builder, Stastny is a former president of the Chicago Home Builders Association, also an appointee to Chicago commissions on human relations and urban renewal, and has served on national and presidential committees and boards.

His wife is the former Betty Ossowski of Beatrice. They have one son and one daughter. Stastny's grandfather, who immigrated to Chicago from a village near Tabor, Czechoslovakia, held Chicago Master Mason License No. 1, and Stastny's father was also a Chicago builder.

Northern Wins Rate Hike OK, But Refund Also Is Ordered

Washington (AP) — Northern Natural Gas Co., of Omaha, Neb., has won approval for a $22 million a year rate increase, but the firm must pay millions of dollars in refunds to its customers.

The Federal Power Commission has accepted an agreement permitting the firm to boost its wholesale natural gas rates by $22 million a year, a figure $16 million a year below the rate increase sought.

In June 1970 Northern proposed to increase its rates by about $38 million annually. The FPC suspended that proposal until Dec. 27, 1970, when it went into effect, subject to refund. The agreed upon settlement is effective as of the same date.

Northern must now refund to its customers the difference between the rates it has charged since last December and the rates permitted under the settlement.

The agreement calls for Northern to make refunds to its customers if its actual average cost of purchased gas for the entire year of 1971 is less than the company's anticipated average gas costs of 16.68 cents per thousand cubic feet.

The agreement doesn't permit Northern to include in its rate base advance payments and related carrying charges for its Canada-Montana pipeline construction project.

The settlement does permit Northern to capitalize carrying charges on the advance payments, which the FPC doesn't normally allow.

Sale Includes Birds

Kenilworth, England (AP) — Bird-loving executive Lionel Mayman put his house up for sale but refused to deal with anyone who would not look after the 200 budgerigars in his Rock garden aviary.

er, Sen. Chambers said he was checking the validity of the board's action and an appeal would be contingent on his findings.

Eddie Chambers declared the board failed to keep its word on procedure for the final decision, which determined an insult.

He declared the decision of the board not to rehire him is an act of reprisal. He outlined some of the constructive things he said he had done and he contended he was terminated because of his interest in the general health, education and welfare of the students and the community.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By MARQUIS CHILDS

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor, is on vacation. Today's column is by Marquis Childs, news analyst.)

WASHINGTON—How do you single out of the crowd a man who can measure up to the fearful demands of the presidency? Is there such a man today? The pessimists, the doubters, the cynics would say no.

Just possibly history can shed a little light on this most troubling of questions when the crowd is so large and confused. In the late 1850's, James Buchanan, a Democrat, was a vacillating, timid president who failed to face up to the deep divisions in the country between the slave-holding South and the industrial, abolitionist North. With the government in Washington ineffectual, the drift was steadily toward disruption and breakdown.

The new Republican party had a number of showy candidates, among them conspicuous establishment figures on the eastern seaboard. Out on the prairie in Illinois was a lanky, rather uncouth looking lawyer who had variable success in politics. Abraham Lincoln was an unknown.

Not only was he unknown but he kept his views very much to himself. To the annoyance of his backers in the East, he would not say that he favored emancipation of the slaves. Nor would he go so far as to express opposition to the institution of slavery. This was a careful, deliberate man whose caution irritated the New Left of his day.

Yet he was nominated at The Wigwam in Chicago as, in a sense, a candidate representing a compromise between the abolitionists and those who continued to believe the Union could survive with gradual changes abating the differences between the two regions. As president, Lincoln showed the courage, the steel, the integrity that made him, in the view of this observer, the greatest of the American presidents.

He had refrained as a candidate from further inflaming the national temper. Once in the office, he was his own man. Nothing could illustrate his independence better than his response to the letter sent him by his arrogant secretary of state, William C. Seward, saying that since Lincoln was green and inexperienced, he, Seward, would be happy to take over the principal duties of the presidency. Thank you just the same, said Lincoln, but I will manage without your help.

An example closer at hand was the governor of New York in 1932. Franklin D. Roosevelt had shown that he was an adroit politician, winning election as a Democrat in a normally Republican state and over the divisions in his own party. But he was considered a man of modest talents who had about reached the limits of his ambition. Early that year, as the depression deepened and the conventions loomed, one of his detractors wrote that he was an amiable man of aristocratic lineage who, if by some chance elected president, would make no imprint on the office.

With his party split a half-dozen ways, Roosevelt was a cautious candidate. He even campaigned, once he had the nomination, as a budget balancer, though millions of Americans were out of work. Yet once in the office, having proclaimed in his inaugural address that "we have nothing to fear but fear itself," he took charge and rallied the country behind a program to restore the nation to health.

Whether there is a potential candidate bearing any resemblance to the two men who emerged as such strong presidents must be a subjective judgment. Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, who has now taken himself out of the race, seemed to have some of the qualities of a strong man who could on occasion keep his own counsel.

To blame Edmund Muskie for his caution is really blaming him for not wanting to throw away his chance for the nomination. He is the front-runner, being sniped at from every side. In the view of this observer, he comes closest to being the candidate who could, given the elements of character, bring some unity to the party and improve himself once he is in office.

A few more coups such as President Nixon's impending visit to Peking and the campaign next year may turn on foreign policy and the President's promise of a generation of peace. Should that be so, with the economy not too flawed, he is likely to be re-elected. And we shall never know whether there was a potential great man among the faces in the crowd.

JACK ANDERSON

Accuser Of Senator Removed From Job

WASHINGTON — Jack Sullivan, the man on whom the government built its bribery case against ex-Senator Dan Brewster, D-Md., has now been fired "for cause" from his job amid charges of financial irregularities.

In the lengthy affidavit Sullivan gave about Brewster, his former boss, he also made a series of damaging allegations against Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., and several Johnson administration officials, which they have denied.

The firing comes only days after Sullivan was told to take an unscheduled vacation pending completion of an audit of the records of the Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity, where he has been administrative director since 1969.

While it is not known what the audit revealed, we have learned the details of the allegations which led to his being put on leave.

These charges were made by a group of past and present officers of the fraternity in a July 1 memorandum to the rest of the organization's hierarchy. They are vigorously disputed by Sullivan.

The memo charges he wrote a check for $1,000 on the fraternity's bank account supposedly for "postage." Instead, the memo says, "this $1,000 check appears to have been used as the paid-in capital" of a company owned by Sullivan.

This June, the memo adds, the $1,000 was paid back to the fraternity.

Sullivan acknowledged writing the $1,000 check to his company, the Super-Speed Maintenance Corp., but insisted it was in payment for a large envelope stuffing and mailing job it did for the fraternity.

He acknowledged further that he had selected his company to do the job and that the company had been using the fraternity's office as its home base with the fraternity secretaries handling the billing.

The reason the $1,000 was returned, Sullivan explained, was that Joseph Owens, the fraternity's Master Inspector, had examined the books and decided that $1,000 was too high for the job. Sullivan said he planned to send a new bill for $450 or $500.

The memo contains other allegations which are either vague or not specifically related to Sullivan. In any case, he denies all wrong-doing and contends a faction in the fraternity is out to get him for his role in the Brewster case.

The American taxpayer unknowingly footed the bill for the recent annual picnic of the U.S. Army Computer Systems Command at Ft. Belvoir, Va. The commanding general was retiring, said Deputy Commander Col. Al R. Hoffman, so they decided to honor the gentleman by holding their yearly outdoor fete during working hours.

So at noon on July 23, some 500 headquarters personnel dropped their paper clips and enjoyed an afternoon of pony riding, softball, watermelon eating, "balloon stomps," and beer-drinking contests.

Scheduled activities ceased promptly at five, however, presumably to spare the taxpayer overtime payments.

New Voter Impact

The vote in the Mississippi gubernatorial primary Tuesday, while not conclusive, could offer some clues to the voting preferences of newly-enfranchised youth voters and newly-registered blacks. The expected drift of the millions of new voters across the nation is to the more moderate or liberal candidates and causes.

Mississippi election officials expected a record turnout for the primary, but press reports said there was little early indication that the new voters altered the outcome of the election. And perhaps the Mississippi voting experience is not a sufficiently representative one on which to judge probable youth voting habits nationwide.

Nevertheless, the Democratic primary in that state—the Mississippi GOP offered no gubernatorial candidate—resulted in the need for an August runoff between two white moderates, the winner to meet black leader Charles Evers, the mayor of Fayette, in the November general election. So either a white moderate or a black will be the next governor of Mississippi, a state that traditionally chooses hardline segregationists for the office. The hardest of the hardliners finished a distant third and the only other vocal segregationist finished next to last in a field of seven Democratic candidates.

With the Vietnam war neutralized as an issue, at least for the present, it is a foregone conclusion that the economy and the impact of newly-enfranchised voters will be the factors most affecting President Nixon's re-election chances in 1972. The election will hang on the state of the economy, which everybody feels if they don't understand.

The extent of the drift of new voters to the left will be harder for the President's advisors to predict. The Mississippi primary, while not a parallel to a Republican-Democrat presidential election, might give them something to work with.

Both Ky, U.S. Lose

In the opinion of Saigon-watchers, South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky wasn't supposed to have had much of a chance in the Oct. 3 presidential elections. He was rated a poor third with retired Gen. Duong Van Minh in the race. A divisive, arrogant, egocentric man, Ky isn't at home in any camp.

The point is, however, that he wasn't even allowed to run. President Thieu successfully blocked Ky from obtaining the endorsements of his candidacy by the required number of provincial and municipal councilmen or members of the National Assembly needed under a law rammed through the National Assembly by Thieu recently in an effort to ensure his re-election.

Ky has a slender hope that the court that invalidated his petitions of candidacy will reconsider its ruling. But it appears that he is effectively out of the contest. And with the vice president's disqualification comes the possibility that Gen. Minh, the only other qualified candidate, might withdraw from the race, as he said he would do if he became convinced that Thieu was rigging the election.

Two prospects arise. Either the people of South Vietnam face an election in which they have no choice or the present government is ripe for a coup. Both alternatives work against the best interests of the South Vietnamese and the United States. The U.S. could stop the latter but do nothing, or apparently nothing, to prevent the former.

A strongman government in Saigon that did not test its popularity with the people it purports to represent does not strengthen the position of the "free" South Vietnamese when it comes to negotiating the future of the country with the Viet Cong. And it makes the United States' long involvement there seem more futile than ever.

TOM WICKER

Apollo 15 Far Advanced Over Earlier Flight; Area Appears Open For International Efforts

WASHINGTON — The first televised lift-off of a manned spacecraft from the moon had none of the beauty and power of those moments when a huge Saturn rocket rises majestically into space from Cape Kennedy. The quick pop that sent off the Falcon in a shower of sparks looked more like something held over from the Fourth of July. And the part of the landing craft left on the moon was all too suggestive of an auto graveyard.

Just two years after the first men walked on the moon, Americans do not in any case seem nearly so interested as they were in those prodigious feats of modern man. Even in living color and with that great American love object—an auto, of sorts—to live up to the scene, the latest moon show seemed to need something. Unfortunately, the LEM lift-off didn't turn out to be it.

That was too bad, because Apollo 15 and its like deserve and will reward much more thought, interest and support from the general public. Not that the priorities argument—which holds that there are more important things to do here on earth—is necessarily wrong, or that it shouldn't be pressed as far as it will go. It is rather that, priorities or no priorities, the moon program has a claim at some point to be considered on its own merits.

By that measure, there is much to be said for it. There is no real way to measure the scientific discoveries and advances of the Apollo flights against possible social gains here on earth, or to say positively that one or the other is worth more to the human race. What can be said for certain is that the gains for science have been real, measurable and important.

Similarly, it is one thing to argue that the skills and manpower of the aerospace industry ought steadily to be diverted by government inducement into housing, transportation, ecology and other important earthly concerns. It would be quite another to argue that the nation would have as much engineering talent, technical knowledge, and experience in applying both to complex problems, had it not been for the money and effort and political support that has gone into the space program.

Those who felt, moreover, that the original moon mission was a spectacular cold war stunt that need not be repeated have been confounded by Apollo 15—an achievement as far advanced over the Apollo 11 landing of 1969, as, say, Lindbergh's transoceanic flight of 1929 was over the Wright Brother's Kitty Hawk feat. The expanding utility of these voyages into space puts in different perspective the commonly heard view that no great gain is to be had from further moon shots, or from the prospective trip to Mars.

It ought also to be pointed out that although the "moon race" may have started in the cold war, it has gone far beyond that. There now seems little warlike spirit on either side—witness Mr. Nixon's moving message to the daughter of one of the Soviet cosmonauts who recently perished.

On the one hand, Soviet and American efforts seem to exemplify the "peaceful competition" that both nations extol, but too often avoid, and on the other, it is clearly an area that is ripe and promising for Soviet-American or international cooperation. It was a giant leap for mankind, not for either side in a cold war, that Neil Armstrong proclaimed two years ago, and he might yet prove a prophet.

Regents Face Tough Decisions

When members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents settle back soon to study recommendations stemming from the recent management study, they'll face mighty difficult decisions in a number of important areas.

On many recommendations, there will undoubtedly be little disagreement.

The consultants recommended, for example, filling the position of executive dean of student affairs for the Lincoln campuses. That the regents would like to do, although it appears they'll have to settle for an acting dean, at least until a new campus president is found.

And the consultants suggested retaining the present status of the College of Agriculture, hardly a difficult task (sacred cows being what they are).

There are a few moves the regents would probably like to make, but can't, and some they are already working on.

The consultants recommended that the chancellor's office be moved off the Lincoln campus, something that would remove the chancellor from immediate access of Lincoln students and staff and soothe those Omahans who believe there is more than close cooperation between the top offices and the Lincoln campus.

But assuming the university would prefer not to move the chancellor's staff into just any nearby vacant building, it would probably take a new building some place in the Capital City and money the university does not have and is not likely to get.

Those realities will make that decision an easy one, most likely, although the regents and the chancellor will probably be looking for ways to make the move.

The consultants also urged a separate budget for the chancellor's staff, a proposal which was sent to the Statehouse last fall with the 1971-72 request, but got lost in the shuffle between request and appropriation.

The tough decisions start to come in relation to two or three of the recommendations which will require marked departure from past practices.

The management firm proposed, for example, establishment of student and faculty advisory committees to operate as permanent adjuncts to the board. A couple of regents balked at that one last month when it was outlined by a representative of the firm.

Another tough decision, and one which ought to get a lot of study, is for a titular flip-flop at the top levels of administration.

The recommendation calls for the chancellor to become the president, and the campus presidents to become chancellors of their campuses and vice presidents of the system.

Intent of the double titles is clear enough — it would parallel the general thrust of the consultants' report for retention of as much campus autonomy as is consistent with efficiency and economy, while strengthening system operations and recognition.

The recommendation may be sound enough academically, but Nebraskans used to the present titles might be mostly confused by the change and left with the impression that $50,000 was spent to get a recommendation for new names.

The really tough decision, and the one with the most far-reaching implications for the future of the university, will come when the board decides what it will do with the proposal on graduate programs.

What the consultants propose ought to be done is to decentralize graduate programs, assigning their administration to graduate deans on each of the three campuses.

Control over programs and degrees (and purse-strings) would be with the regents themselves. Gone would be the graduate council which now functions system-wide.

The only apparent system-level control, outside of the regents, would be coordination of the programs on the various campuses by a new vice president for academic affairs, a position which would replace the current post of executive vice chancellor.

That, at least, is the impression left by the oral presentation on the management firm's preliminary report.

If the recommendation wins regental approval, however, it will probably be against the advice of not a few administrators.

Chancellor Varner has already said he has severe doubts about the proposal, since it would appear to reverse a post-merger policy of centralizing graduate programs on a system basis.

NU now has 42 doctoral programs, down from the 45 it had prior to Varner's recent decision to slice three out of the picture. Varner has said he would prefer fewer than 40 (perhaps in the nature of 20) simply because the university cannot get the money it needs for 40 or more first-rate programs.

The management firm's study, however, would apparently leave few people between the campus deans and the regents, and the fact of the matter is that decision to do away with graduate programs are difficult ones for academicians, especially if the program to be done away with is "mine."

There are those who find too much show-biz flavor about these flights. Many others — longing, as men do, to stand in wild surmise, silent, upon a peak in Darien — undoubtedly are irritated by the endless jargon and the ritual schoolboy slang muttered across what was once the immense silence of the void — a silence that deserved to be broken by something more memorable.

But when all that has been said, it says little. Landing on the moon remains an achievement of extraordinary human ingenuity and human courage, a profound testament to man's faith in himself and his destiny; and for those reasons alone, it may be worth far more than it costs, or than we know.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By MARQUIS CHILDS

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor, is on vacation. Today's column is by Marquis Childs, news analyst.)

WASHINGTON—How do you single out of the crowd a man who can measure up to the fearful demands of the presidency? Is there such a man today? The pessimists, the doubters, the cynics would say no.

Just possibly history can shed a little light on this most troubling of questions when the crowd is so large and confused. In the late 1850's, James Buchanan, a Democrat, was a vacillating, timid president who failed to face up to the deep divisions in the country between the slave-holding South and the industrial, abolitionist North. With the government in Washington ineffectual, the drift was steadily toward disruption and breakdown.

The new Republican party had a number of showy candidates, among them conspicuous establishment figures on the eastern seaboard. Out on the prairie in Illinois was a lanky, rather uncouth looking lawyer who had variable success in politics. Abraham Lincoln was an unknown.

Not only was he unknown but he kept his views very much to himself. To the annoyance of his backers in the East, he would not say that he favored emancipation of the slaves. Nor would he go so far as to express opposition to the institution of slavery. This was a careful, deliberate man whose caution irritated the New Left of his day.

Yet he was nominated at The Wigwag in Chicago as, in a sense, a candidate representing a compromise between the abolitionists and those who continued to believe the Union could survive with gradual changes abating the differences between the two regions. As president, Lincoln showed the courage, the steel, the integrity that made him, in the view of this observer, the greatest of the American presidents.

He had refrained as a candidate from further inflaming the national temper. Once in the office, he was his own man. Nothing could illustrate his independence better than his response to the letter sent him by his arrogant secretary of state, William C. Seward, saying that since Lincoln was green and inexperienced, he, Seward, would be happy to take over the principal duties of the presidency. Thank you just the same, said Lincoln, but I will manage without your help.

An example closer at hand was the governor of New York in 1932. Franklin D. Roosevelt had shown that he was an adroit politician, winning election as a Democrat in a normally Republican state and over the divisions in his own party. But he was considered a man of modest talents who had about reached the limits of his ambition. Early that year, as the depression deepened and the conventions loomed, one of his detractors wrote that he was an amiable man of aristocratic lineage who, if by some chance elected president, would make no imprint on the office.

With his party split a half-dozen ways, Roosevelt was a cautious candidate. He even campaigned, once he had the nomination, as a budget balancer, though millions of Americans were out of work. Yet once in the office, having proclaimed in his inaugural address that "we have nothing to fear but fear itself," he took charge and rallied the country behind a program to restore the nation to health.

Whether there is a potential candidate bearing any resemblance to the two men who emerged as such strong presidents must be a subjective judgment. Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, who has now taken himself out of the race, seemed to have some of the qualities of a strong man who could on occasion keep his own counsel.

To blame Edmund Muskie for his caution is really blaming him for not wanting to throw away his chance for the nomination. He is the front-runner, being sniped at from every side. In the view of this observer, he comes closest to being the candidate who could, given the elements of character, bring some unity to the party and improve himself once he is in office.

A few more coups such as President Nixon's impending visit to Peking and the campaign next year may turn on foreign policy and the President's promise of a generation of peace. Should that be so, with the economy not too flawed, he is likely to be re-elected. And we shall never know whether there was a potential great man among the faces in the crowd.

JACK ANDERSON

Accuser Of Senator Removed From Job

WASHINGTON — Jack Sullivan, the man on whom the government built its bribery case against ex-Senator Dan Brewster, D-Md., has now been fired "for cause" from his job amid charges of financial irregularities.

In the lengthy affidavit Sullivan gave about Brewster, his former boss, he also made a series of damaging allegations against Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., and several Johnson administration officials, which they have denied.

The firing comes only days after Sullivan was told to take an unscheduled vacation pending completion of an audit of the records of the Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity, where he has been administrative director since 1969.

While it is not known what the audit revealed, we have learned the details of the allegations which led to his being put on leave.

These charges were made by a group of past and present officers of the fraternity in a July 1 memorandum to the rest of the organization's hierarchy. They are vigorously disputed by Sullivan.

The memo charges he wrote a check for $1,000 on the fraternity's bank account supposedly for "postage." Instead, the memo says, "this $1,000 check appears to have been used as the paid-in capital" of a company owned by Sullivan.

This June, the memo adds, the $1,000 was paid back to the fraternity.

Sullivan acknowledged writing the $1,000 check to his company, the Super-Speed Maintenance Corp., but insisted it was in payment for a large envelope stuffing and mailing Scheduled activities ceased promptly at five, however, presumably to spare the taxpayer overtime payments.

New Voter Impact

The vote in the Mississippi gubernatorial primary Tuesday, while not conclusive, could offer some clues to the voting preferences of newly-enfranchised youth voters and newly-registered blacks. The expected drift of the millions of new voters across the nation is to the more moderate or liberal candidates and causes.

Mississippi election officials expected a record turnout for the primary, but press reports said there was little early indication that the new voters altered the outcome of the election. And perhaps the Mississippi voting experience is not a sufficiently representative one on which to judge probable youth voting habits nationwide.

Nevertheless, the Democratic primary in that state—the Mississippi GOP offered no gubernatorial candidate—resulted in the need for an August runoff between two white moderates, the winner to meet black leader Charles Evers, the mayor of Fayette, in the November general election. So either a white moderate or a black will be the next governor of Mississippi, a state that traditionally chooses headline segregationists for the office. The hardest of the hardliners finished a distant third and the only other vocal segregationist finished next to last in a field of seven Democratic candidates.

With the Vietnam war neutralized as an issue, at least for the present, it is a foregone conclusion that the economy and the impact of newly-enfranchised voters will be the factors most affecting President Nixon's re-election chances in 1972. The election will hang on the state of the economy, which everybody feels it they don't understand.

The extent of the drift of new voters to the left will be harder for the President's advisors to predict. The Mississippi primary, while not a parallel to a Republican-Democrat presidential election, might give them something to work with.

Both Ky, U.S. Lose

In the opinion of Saigon-watchers, South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky wasn't supposed to have had much of a chance in the Oct. 3 presidential elections. He was rated a poor third with retired Gen. Duong Van Minh in the race. A divisive, arrogant, egocentric man, Ky isn't at home in any camp.

The point is, however, that he wasn't even allowed to run. President Thieu successfully blocked Ky from obtaining the endorsements of his candidacy by the required number of provincial and municipal councilmen or members of the National Assembly needed under a law rammed through the National Assembly by Thieu recently in an effort to ensure his re-election.

Ky has a slender hope that the court that invalidated his petitions of candidacy will reconsider its ruling. But it appears that he is effectively out of the contest. And with the vice president's disqualification comes the possibility that Gen. Minh, the only other qualified candidate, might withdraw from the race, as he said he would do if he became convinced that Thieu was rigging the election.

Two prospects arise. Either the people of South Vietnam face an election in which they have no choice or the present government is ripe for a coup. Both alternatives work against the best interests of the South Vietnamese and the United States. The U.S. could stop the latter but did nothing, or apparently nothing, to prevent the former.

A strongman government in Saigon that did not test its popularity with the people it purports to represent does not strengthen the position of the "free" South Vietnamese when it comes to negotiating the future of the country with the Viet Cong. And it makes the United States' long involvement there seem more futile than ever.

Apollo 15 Far Advanced Over Earlier Flight; Area Appears Open For International Efforts

WASHINGTON — The first televised lift-off of a manned spacecraft from the moon had none of the beauty and power of those moments when a huge Saturn rocket rises majestically into space from Cape Kennedy. The quick pop that sent off the Falcon in a shower of sparks looked more like something held over from the Fourth of July, and the part of the landing craft left on the moon was all too suggestive of an auto graveyard.

Just two years after the first men walked on the moon, Americans do not in any case seem nearly so interested as they were in those prodigious feats of modern man. Even in living color and with that great American love object—an auto, of sorts—to live up to the scene, the latest moon show seemed to need something. Unfortunately, the LEM lift-off didn't turn out to be it.

That was too bad, because Apollo 15 and its like deserve and will reward much more thought, interest and support from the general public. Not that the priorities argument—which holds that there are more important things to do here on earth—is necessarily wrong, or that it shouldn't be pressed as far as it will go. It is rather that, priorities or no priorities, the moon program has a claim at some point to be considered on its own merits.

By that measure, there is much to be said for it. There is no real way to measure the scientific discoveries and advances of the Apollo flights against possible social gains here on earth, or to say positively that one or the other is worth more to the human race. What can be said for certain is that the gains for science have been real, measurable and important.

Similarly, it is one thing to argue that the skills and manpower of the aerospace industry ought steadily to be diverted by government inducement into housing, transportation, ecology and other important earthly concerns. It would be quite another to argue that the nation would have as much engineering talent, technical knowledge, and experience in applying both to complex problems, had it not been for the money and effort and political support that has gone into the space program.

Those who felt, moreover, that the original moon mission was a spectacular cold war stunt that need not be repeated have been confounded by

Regents Face Tough Decisions

When members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents settle back soon to study recommendations stemming from the recent management study, they'll face mighty difficult decisions in a number of important areas.

On many recommendations, there will undoubtedly be little disagreement.

The consultants recommended, for example, filling the position of executive dean of student affairs for the Lincoln campuses. That the regents would like to do, although it appears they'll have to settle for an acting dean, at least until a new campus president is found.

And the consultants suggested retaining the present status of the College of Agriculture, hardly a difficult task (sacred cows being what they are).

There are a few moves the regents would probably like to make, but can't, and some they are already working on.

The consultants recommended that the chancellor's office be moved off the Lincoln campus, something that would remove the chancellor from immediate access of Lincoln students and staff and soothe those Omahans who believe there is more than close cooperation between the top offices and the Lincoln campus.

But assuming the university would prefer not to move the chancellor's staff into just any nearby vacant building, it would probably take a new building some place in the Capital City and money the university does not have and is not likely to get.

Those realities will make that decision an easy one, most likely, although the regents and the chancellor will probably be looking for ways to make the move.

The consultants also urged a separate budget for the chancellor's staff, a proposal which was sent to the Statehouse last fall with the 1971-72 request, but got lost in the shuffle between request and appropriation.

The tough decisions start to come in relation to two or three of the recommendations which will require marked departure from past practices.

The management firm proposed, for example, establishment of student and faculty advisory committees to operate as permanent adjuncts to the board. A couple of regents balked at that one last month when it was outlined by a representative of the firm.

Another tough decision, and one which ought to get a lot of study, is for a titular flip-flop at the top levels of administration.

The recommendation calls for the chancellor to become the president, and the campus presidents to become chancellors of their campuses and vice presidents of the system.

Intent of the double titles is clear enough — it would parallel the general thrust of the consultants' report for retention of as much campus autonomy as is consistent with efficiency and economy, while strengthening system operations and recognition.

The recommendation may be sound enough academically, but Nebraskaans used to the present titles might be mostly confused by the change and left with the impression that $50,000 was spent to get a recommendation for new names.

The really tough decision, and the one with the most far-reaching implications for the future of the university, will come when the board decides what it will do with the proposal on graduate programs.

What the consultants propose ought to be done is to decentralize graduate programs, assigning their administration to graduate deans on each of the three campuses.

Control over programs and degrees (and purse-strings) would be with the regents themselves. Gone would be the graduate council which now functions system-wide.

The only apparent system-level control, outside of the regents, would be coordination of the programs on the various campuses by a new vice president for academic affairs, a position which would replace the current post of executive vice chancellor.

That, at least, is the impression left by the oral presentation on the management firm's preliminary report.

If the recommendation wins regional approval, however, it will probably be against the advice of not a few administrators.

Chancellor Varner has already said he has severe doubts about the proposal, since it would appear to reverse a post-merger policy of centralizing graduate programs on a system basis.

NU now has 42 doctoral programs, down from the 45 it had prior to Varner's recent decision to slice three out of the picture. Varner has said he would prefer fewer than 42 (perhaps in the nature of 20) simply because the university cannot get the money it needs for 40 or more first-rate programs.

The management firm's study, however, would apparently leave few people between the campus deans and the regents, and the fact of the matter is that decision to do away with graduate programs are difficult ones for academicians, especially if the program is to be done away with is "mine."

That's why control of graduate purse-strings has to be at the highest level, as the consultants recommended. And graduate programs are among the most expensive programs in any university's budget.

But decentralization of those programs might work against best efficiency and economy by creating the potential for too much administrative independence on the individual campuses.

The university would be far better off to work diligently at coordinating graduate programs on all campuses by combining the strengths that each campus has to offer into a few high quality programs.

There are significant moves in that direction now. Those starts should not be abandoned.

of pink and purple blossoms is background in one spot, the vine's waxy leaves an attractive filler. A path beneath wide spreading trees leads across an exciting bridge, beneath which a stream flows gently or dashes in anger with the rainy season. There is a pasture with cows and their calves; two Shetland ponies nibble the green grass, toss their heads or swish their tails against an annoying fly.

Going back to the house and up the steps to a long wide porch or deck, one side is a full-length bench on which to sit in the evening's cool breeze. In the wide spread of an old tree sits an immovable squirrel, with eyes as curious as the real live ones racing along the branches. They no doubt wonder why the other one won't come to play. In the branches are wind chimes that tinkle softly.

At the end of the dining room, a lavender metal table is being set. All fruit and vegetables are raised in their garden, and canned or frozen. They have their own meat, also. This is truly a modern dream come true on a farm.

The house inside belies its simple exterior. The outdoor beauty is as exciting as inside in colors and tasteful decor. The fireplace, thick rugs, the stilled organ that has the promise of music for a family relaxing as the day deepens into twilight.

Welfare Dept. Withdraws Request For Three-Judge ADC Suit Panel

The State Welfare Department withdrew its request Thursday for a three-judge panel in the U.S. District Court lawsuit seeking to enjoin the department from ratably reducing payments for aid to dependent children (ADC) families.

The week-old suit, brought by two recipients, Sandra Zollicoffer of Lincoln and Sally Sims of Omaha, challenges as a class action the constitutionality and legality of the department's "ratably reduced budgeting standards" which became effective Aug. 1.

Federal Judge Warren K. Urbom denied last week their request for a temporary restraining order against the department and the issue of a temporary injunction was taken under advisement Wednesday by the court following a lengthy hearing.

E. D. Warnsholz, assistant attorney general representing the department, declined comment on the legal move abandoning the request for a three-judge panel.

Earlier, Warnsholz had said the three-judge panel was requested under federal rules because any appellate action could be taken directly to the U.S. Supreme Court.

No decision on the temporary injunction sought by the ADC plaintiffs is expected before next week because Judge Urbom has granted the department until next Monday the opportunity to submit memorandum briefs on the temporary injunction issue.

The department has contended its ratably reduction plan complies with a state law enacted by the 1971 Legislature and has the approval of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Warnsholz's memorandum brief is expected to cite federal case authority in support of the department's ratably reduction plan which tends to reduce welfare payments to ADC families with "outside income" but has no effect on families now drawing the "statutory maximums" set by the Legislature.

At Wednesday's hearing, Tom Brown of Omaha, one of the attorneys for the plaintiffs, contended the Nebraska plan violated a federal court opinion in a Mississippi case, but the welfare department's attorney argued the controlling federal case authority generally supports the "ratably reduction" method being used by Nebraska.

Officials estimate approximately one-third of the state's 11,000-plus ADC families will be affected by the ratably reduction move which they say is necessary to avoid "deficit" welfare spending during fiscal 1972.

Needs Of Public No. 1 On Bus Manager's List

The needs of the bus-riding public are tops in priority for Jerald Rae, the new general manager of the city's public bus transportation system.

Rae said Thursday he has many ideas on how to improve service.

And bus riders have noticed a difference in service since the city took over operation of the line last month.

New Schedules
One change already made at the initiation of Rae was new schedules so that passengers who start work at 8 a.m. get to their jobs on time.

Schedules for all routes were moved up 10 minutes on the 7:30 a.m. run to get persons downtown by 7:55 a.m.

Rae said firms had complained that buses were getting their employees downtown at 8:05.

"The change has been working wonders," he said.

Rae said he has been busy trying to instill in the bus drivers a feeling that they are professionals and should take pride in their job.

Driver Called In
He said everytime a rider calls in a complaint, the driver is called and he goes over with the driver what the company expects.

Where a complaint is legitimate, the driver is "wrote up" and disciplinary action taken if the matter is severe.

Rae said employees are told what the consequences would be if the matter happens again.

Well Received
He said the "shape up" program has been well received by the long time drivers and the union.

Most of the complaints, Rae said, have involved new drivers.

He said he has also hired an extra person to keep the buses clean.

Other ideas he has for improving service, he said, will be presented to the Transit Advisory Board at its meeting next Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Cleanup Efforts Good For Shrine Grid Ticket Cuts

Lincoln youth can get discounts on Shrine Bowl knothole tickets if they gather old newspapers, corrugated cardboard, washed and flattened non-rusted metal cans and deliver them to the old Burger Barn, south of 48th and Normal Blvd.

The project, giving elementary, junior and senior high school youngsters five cents off the dollar for every 20 pounds of waste material collected, is sponsored by the Fleming Co. and Lincoln Independent Grocers Alliance members.

Company officials will weigh materials and sell tickets at the recycling center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the next two Saturdays. The proceeds of the Shrine Bowl game, Aug. 21 at the University of Nebraska Memorial Stadium, will go to help crippled children.

Prevention Ignored Mental Health Goal

Representatives of a Lincoln mental health planning committee Thursday said a community plan for combating mental health problems must stress preventive and promotional aspects.

Most community mental health programs "have been based on the assumption that mental illness is a disease and that the problem is to get the person suffering this malady into the hands of someone who is skilled in 'curing the disease,'" the committee said in a statement.

The consequence, the statement said, "has been an emphasis on the provision of diagnosis, treatment and aftercare and the neglect of activities that prevent emotional disorder and promote positive mental health."

Drafted By Student
The statement was drafted by Don Klosterman, NU graduate educational psychology student who has been serving as a staff member to the mental health planning committee, formed last February as a subcommittee of the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council.

The health council has directed the planning committee to "develop and recommend a plan to better meet the mental health needs of Lincoln-Lancaster County," the area for which the health council has responsibility.

Since its formation, the committee, with about 30 members, has begun to gather information on mental health needs and form "need statements" toward the development of programs.

In an attempt to generate community interest and to guarantee participation, committee members were chosen

Releases Planned

A public hearing was held last month, and the committee is planning a series of public information releases during the coming weeks to keep the area's citizens informed of its work.

By late October, the committee hopes to have its proposals ready for the health council to consider.

"In terms of social welfare and the national economy, mental illness is the most serious of our public health problems," Klosterman said the committee has agreed.

12.5% Need Care

"National surveys suggest that 12.5% of citizens displayed sufficient symptoms to warrant psychiatric treatment," he added.

"Yet, despite an expanding consciousness of the problem, increasing energy directed at its alleviation and increased funding for this effort, it is obvious . . . that the problem of mental illness remains enormous and unsolved."

A community mental health program, the committee decided, must meet responsibilities in:

- restoration of health through diagnosis, treatment and aftercare.
- prevention of emotional disorder by control of biological and social factors that jeopardize mental health.
- promotion of mental health through educational efforts.

Argentina Nabs Catholic Priests

Buenos Aires, Argentina (AP) — The army announced Thursday the arrest of 17 persons, including three Roman Catholic priests, in a roundup of "terrorist elements."

Authorities also seized arms, explosives, subversive literature and narcotics, said Gen. Elvio N. Anaya. He said material was found "related to recent assassinations of members of the police forces."

The priests, members of the leftist Third World Priests Movement, were arrested Tuesday in Rosario. No charges were announced.

3 Boats Seized

Vadsoe, Norway (UPI) — Soviet authorities have seized three Norwegian fishing vessels for trespassing in Soviet territorial waters, police in this northern town said.

HELLO MOM, GUESS WHAT?

The unidentified young man didn't say whether his call got through during a torrential downpour in Corpus Christi, Texas. More than 7 inches of rain fell in a three-hour period, causing flooding throughout the city.

BLC To Ask $50,000 For Housing Project

The board of directors of the Better Lincoln Committee (BLC) Thursday decided to form a presentation committee to approach the Lincoln Foundation for $50,000 in seed money to get a Rehabilitation Improvement Program (RIP) into operation.

The rehabilitation program, aimed at providing housing for low-income families, has been in the planning stage for approximately a year.

The program proposes rehabilitating 172 homes during the next five years. Decisions on the acquisition and sale of housing will be in the hands of a management team of volunteers who are professionals in the fields of real estate, lending, architecture, real estate law and appraisal.

Advisory Panel Planned
An advisory council made up of low-income persons is also planned.

BLC Executive Director Tom Carroll said the $50,000 is intended to be a matching contribution to $50,000 the Better Lincoln Committee plans to raise through the sale of bonds to the community.

Carroll said the BLC is interested in having the pie dge in advance of raising the money from bond sales.

George Hancock, chairman of BLC, said funds to purchase and rehabilitate homes would come solely from local money. There would be no reliance on federal funds, a factor which has bogged down housing for low-income projects of others because of requirements involved.

However, plans do call for making use of governmental programs when possible.

For example, placing a home under the Housing Authority's rent subsidy program for a family which could not immediately purchase a home would be done. This way the rental payment which would be below the average market rental of $130 (utilities included) of a house rehabilitated under the program.

Hancock said he is optimistic the project will be a success.

'Property Out There'
"I am satisfied it can be done. I know the property is out there," he said.

The idea is to take homes which do not meet the city's housing code and fix them up so that the homes, which would have three bedrooms or more, would be in compliance.

A budget prepared for the project is based on average purchases of $7,500 per house, a rehabilitation cost of $3,000 and sales at $11,500. The budget proposal also is based on three homes a month to be purchased with two to be sold and one rented.

Omaha Indians Praised By Mrs. Harris In Visit

By MARY PAT MURPHY

Macy (AP) — LaDonna Harris Thursday urged the Omaha Indian tribe to continue to fight for the right to determine the course of their own lives.

A half-Comanche Indian and wife of presidential hopeful Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., Mrs. Harris was here to help the Omahas open their 164th annual Pow Wow.

Mrs. Harris has long been active in Indian rights movements and was a founder and the first president of Oklahomans for Indian Opportunity, a group in her home state designed to improve the condition of the Indian people.

'Decide For Ourselves'

"We want to decide things for our own selves," she said. "We want to decide things for our children and decide our own lives."

She praised the Omahas for "working hard to make things better for yourselves and for your children."

Mrs. Harris cited the tribal law enforcement efforts which have been made since jurisdiction over the tribe was given back to the federal government under retrocession. Law enforcement had been under state jurisdiction and the legality of the retrocession move still is pending in the courts.

Thursday was the first day of the pow wow and the festivities were sobered somewhat by two funerals in Macy, including services for nationally known Indian leader Leonard Springer, who died last week of a heart attack.

Misses Dancing

Mrs. Harris frequently attends pow wows and sometimes participates in the tribal dances. She told the tribe members she regretted that she had such a short time in Macy and wished she could stay for the dancing, which started Thursday night.

A group of Oklahoma Indians were in Macy for the celebration and Mrs. Harris found some old friends and relatives among them.

Tribal Council Chairman Eddie Cline said Indians from all over the country travel to the pow wow and some 30 tribes may be represented at the height of the four-day festivities.

Visit Cut Short

After an arrival delayed 90 minutes because of a canceled airline flight out of Denver,

Mrs. Harris had to cut her visit to the reservation short and spent only about an hour in Macy.

In introducing the petite, attractive Mrs. Harris, Cline had praise for both her and her husband.

Cline said Mrs. Harris' "voice is strong and will be felt" and praised her work to better the lot of the Indians.

The tribal chairman called Macy the "Democratic stronghold of Nebraska." He said he hoped Harris will be successful in his presidential aspirations and that the senator could count on the Omahas for support.

'Need For Leadership'

"Those of use who are Democrats recognize the great need for good leadership," Cline said, "and we look forward to Sen. Harris' participation."

The Indian leader added, "From this day on, we of the Omaha people will look on Sen. Harris as extra special."

He then gave Mrs. Harris an embroidered wool shawl made by a member of the Omaha tribe. The fringe on the shawl was hand-tied and Mrs. Harris explained that each tribe has its own distinctive way of tying the fringe. Cline said he hoped Mrs. Harris would wear the shawl when dancing at future pow wows.

"I will wear it when I go to places of honor and distinction," Mrs. Harris responded, "and maybe even wear it sometimes in the White House."

Circus Parade In Lincoln At Turn Of Century

Gaudy circus wagons carrying a menagerie of circus delights stopped traffic in Lincoln in 1906 for the circus parade which preceded the big show.

Crowds cluttered Lincoln's O Street in 1906 for the traditional circus parade when the Ringling Brothers came to town. Fourteen years later in 1920, the parades were abandoned to devote more time to the lengthy process of erecting the sprawling tent city.

By GAIL HERSTEAD

In the year 1871, P. T. Barnum's Traveling Exhibition and World's Fair made its debut under the big top in Brooklyn, N.Y. and now, one-hundred years later following numerous mergers and curtain calls, the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus makes its one-hundredth birthday anniversary debut in the air-conditioned Pershing Auditorium, on Friday, August 13.

During that century the Greatest Show on Earth — an all-encompassing statement contrived by P. T. Barnum himself — has evolved from the fantasies of entrepreneurs such as Phineas Taylor Barnum, James Anthony Bailey and the seven Ringling brothers.

The first fantasy took on perspective when one enterprising William Coup lifted Barnum's name and money (with permission) and set up operations on April 10, 1871. Although the shows prospered, Coup and Barnum's partnership suffered; Coup bowed out and Barnum combined efforts with showman James A. Bailey and the two received top billings in 1881 when they opened with the first American three-ring circus.

With Barnum's death in 1891, Bailey and his circus troupe went abroad on the European circuit while a touring midwest circus group known as "Yankee Robinson and Ringling Brothers' Great Double Shows, Circus and Caravan" gathered admirers.

As Bailey's Barnum and Bailey Circus jumped back and forth from engagements in the States and Europe, competition grew

A 1909 Lincoln advertisement proclaims the coming of the Greatest Show on Earth.

Hard-working pachyderms, who are better known as elephants, were often accompanied by youthful admirers like this bike-riding youngster, as they towed the show wagons about Lincoln.

fierce between Bailey and the Ringling Brothers. The high-pitched rivalry continued until Bailey's death in 1906 when his estate sold the complete Barnum and Bailey properties to the Ringlings. The Ringling Brothers managed to keep the two circuses on different road shows until 1919 when the two were finally combined, resulting in Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows, The Greatest Show on Earth, which premiered that March in New York's Madison Square Garden.

In 1936, the last of the Ringling brothers died, unloading the circus conglomeration on John Ringling North, son of Ida, the lone Ringling sister.

Then during World War II, President Franklin D. Roosevelt intervened to arrange special allowances for the circus in order that circus engagements be kept in hopes of boosting home-front morale.

Colossal pageantry continued to delight children and adults alike under the nostalgic big top up to July 16, 1956, when the show of all shows played under canvas for the last time in Pittsburgh, Penn.

After the tents folded, new vistas appeared in 1957 when Judge Roy Hofheinz, creator of Houston's Astrodome, joined Irvin and Israel

Feld in the sizable purchase of the Greatest Show on Earth.

The show's centennial edition gives circus fans a glimpse into past performances through act recreations and a program display of antique circus posters and priceless memorabilia that is sure to appease the most exacting onlooker.

Although the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus has truly entered a new era as a powerful business enterprise playing in indoor superstructures, the glittery facade still unveils an even greater display each year of what is and always will be the Greatest Show on Earth.

Bridge: your bidding quiz

B. Jay Becker

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
1♠	Dble	Pass	2♥
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠J6 ♥AQJ10 ♦AQ74 ♣Q83
2. ♠AQ5 ♥97 ♦AKQ962 ♣K9
3. ♠S ♥KQ64 ♦A7 ♣KQJ852
4. ♠AQ7 ♥J35 ♦AK92 ♣AJ6

1. Pass. By doubling for takeout you've already announced a hand of at least opening bid proportions. The response to the double, when made in minimum terms, does not show strength, and in fact it is often made with a relatively poor hand.

Once the meaning of the double and the response are understood, the doubler can gauge his action thereafter accordingly. With a minimum double, he passes partner's response. Only if he has substantially more than a minimum does he bid again to show the extra values and the possibility of a game.

This hand has almost no chance for game opposite a minimum response. There are losers all over the place and you can't be sure that partner will make two hearts, let alone three or four. If North had real values he would have shown them by jumping to three hearts. Since he failed to do that, game is next to impossible. Change the queen of clubs to the ace and you could then bid three hearts.

2. Three notrump. Admittedly this is a gamble, since North may not have a button. But with eight probable tricks, assuming a spade lead, it is not too much to expect partner to have the queen of clubs or its equivalent. Not every contract is underwritten by Lloyd's. You must sometimes live dangerously.

3. Four hearts. It would be cowardly to bid less, even though there might be four unavoidable losers. A raise to three hearts would be much too cautious, for partner might well pass holding nothing but the ace of hearts or king of diamonds, either of which would practically guarantee ten tricks.

4. Two notrump. This is a mighty strong bid in the sequence shown. You are bidding two notrump single-handedly in the face of the possibility that partner has a worthless hand. It naturally follows that North must carry on to game with only moderate values.

It would be foolhardy to leap to three notrump merely because partner responded in your weak spot, hearts. This would be too much like trying to lift yourself by our own bootstraps.

Bridge: your bidding quiz

B. Jay Becker

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
1♠	Dble	Pass	2♥
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠J6 ♥AQJ10 ♦AQ74 ♣Q83
2. ♠AQ5 ♥97 ♦AKQ962 ♣K9
3. ♠8 ♥KQ64 ♦A7 ♣KQJ852
4. ♠AQ7 ♥J85 ♦AK92 ♣AJ6

1. Pass. By doubling for takeout you've already announced a hand of at least opening bid proportions. The response to the double, when made in minimum terms, does not show strength, and in fact it is often made with a relatively poor hand.

Once the meaning of the double and the response are understood, the doubler can gauge his action thereafter accordingly. With a minimum double, he passes partner's response. Only if he has substantially more than a minimum does he bid again to show the extra values and the possibility of a game.

This hand has almost no chance for game opposite a minimum response. There are losers all over the place and you can't be sure that partner will make two hearts, let alone three or four. If North had real values he could have shown them by jumping to three hearts. Since he failed to do that, game is next to impossible. Change the queen of clubs to the ace and you could then bid three hearts.

2. Three notrump. Admittedly this is a gamble, since North may not have a button. But with eight probable tricks, assuming a spade lead, it is not too much to expect partner to have the queen of clubs or its equivalent. Not every contract is underwritten by Lloyd's. You must sometimes live dangerously.

3. Four hearts. It would be cowardly to bid less, even though there might be four unavoidable losers. A raise to three hearts would be much too cautious, for partner might well pass holding nothing but the ace of hearts or king of diamonds, either of which would practically guarantee ten tricks.

4. Two notrump. This is a mighty strong bid in the sequence shown. You are bidding two notrump single-handedly in the face of the possibility that partner has a worthless hand. It naturally follows that North must carry on to game with only moderate values.

It would be foolhardy to leap to three notrump merely because partner responded in your weak spot, hearts. This would be too much like trying to lift yourself by our own bootstraps.

By PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

Often it is easier to attack what is wrong in this world than to point out all of the things that are going smoothly. It might simply be the nature of the beast, that we are continually striving to make headway rather than look backward and rest on our laurels.

The point of all this chatter, at least for today, is to lead into a brief 'bravo' for the cultural affairs department of ETV, and for that matter, the whole station.

It was not so many months ago that we were pleading a case for ETV to be given what it justly deserved — a new building and equipment that had their name on it and was fleetingly threatened to be taken away. That building now is ETV's, and the ETV staff will be moving into their new headquarters this year.

Last October, ETV, (which prefers to be called a public broadcasting television station rather than the stigmatized 'educational television'), brought in a new executive producer of cultural affairs, Allan Singer. It was not long before Mr. Singer had two co-workers, Ron Nicodemus as producer-director, and Pat Wylder as production assistant, and they were off and running and doing great things.

The goals of the department are four-sided, including such magnanimous undertakings as bringing Nebraska communities closer; serving as a clearing house for information; expanding the cultural experiences of our citizens and last, but not least, bringing Nebraska's culture to the rest of the country.

As Mr. Singer said to us this week "Nebraska is not a cultural desert as so many tend to think." We don't think so either, Mr. Singer. We hope you will please join us.

THE FIRST AND THE LAST . . . The gates of the Children's Zoo will open a bit early this Saturday, (9:30) to make allowance for the many visitors who would like to see the first Hovland-Swanson benefit fashion show for the Arnott R. Folsom Society. Back to school fashions will be modeled by 45 local youngsters beginning at 10 a.m. Following the fashion show will be the last performance this year of "Hob's Choice"—a musical for children.

AN OUTDOOR AFFAIR . . . We're hoping for clear skies on August 19 through 21 — that is when the Lincoln Artists' Guild sponsors its annual sidewalk exhibit at the Gateway Shopping Center, beginning at 9 a.m., each day. Works by members of the Guild will be on exhibit and for sale.

EVERY CHILD LOVES A CIRCUS . . . and so do most adults for that matter. On Friday, Aug. 13, Ringling Bros. and Barnum Bailey Circus will open at Pershing Auditorium with "The Greatest Show On Earth" Celebrating its 100th birthday, the circus promises to offer "an amplitudinous array of amazingly accomplished acts and artists." Come One, Come All.

CURTAIN CALL . . . A contemporary version of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" opens tonight at Howell Theatre's NEBRASKA REPERTORY. The play is directed by Robert Hall. . . . "PRIME OF MISS JEAN BRODIE", by the Lincoln Community Playhouse Youth Wing will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at the Maude Rousseau School auditorium. . . . VILLAGE THEATRE . . . at Brownville Showtime is 8 o'clock on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, with 2:30 o'clock matinees on Saturday and Sunday. . . . DON'T FORGET . . . This is the weekend of the Czech Festival in the Czech capitol of Wilber, Neb.

on a tour of the shops

This week we journeyed out to Havelock and found several shops that caught our fancy—so this morning we will tell you about seven of those shops that may have just the items or products you have been looking for.

AT KEN MITZNER'S RARE COIN CO.

If coin collecting happens to be your interest, Ken Mitzner's is the place for you. The boutique has coins of all shapes and sizes—from the very rare to more or less common ones that may complete a collector's book.

In the shop we also found all of the necessary supplies for the collection including coin cleaners and magnifying glasses—in addition to many books all about coins and collecting.

To fit in with the coin collector's likes we found several table clocks—and the numerals are repaced by various United States coins.

Silver gifts of all varieties, and antiques, also are to be found in the Rare Coin Co. The antiques include flat ware and silver ware.

Mr. Metzger told us that he both buys and sells in his line of work and then pointed out his newest addition — a Bid Board. The soon-to-be in action project will work something like this — Mr. Metzger will place national and foreign coins on the board and then will advertise them nationwide, with the prize going to the highest bidder.

AT THE SAUSAGE KITCHEN

The aroma is the most discerning characteristic as one enters the Home of Big Daddy Sausage Kitchen. Country style sausages are all made right in the rear of the store. We were taken on a brief tour which included the cold storage and then the work area where the meats are stuffed, smoked and packaged for the market.

All of the 20 products are hickory smoked for especially good flavor. For a quick taste-tampling dinner you might want to try one of the pre-cooked hickory smoked-flavor turkey. It is ready to eat, and need only be bought and sliced.

One of the most enticing aspects of the Sausage Kitchen whose brand name by the way is 'Big Daddy', is the fact that all of the meats are home-made. This is a welcome treat today when such commodities are rare finds.

Some of your old time favorites can be found under the Big Daddy label, including German and Italian sausage, or all beef sausage. Other items include beef jerky, wieners, franks, bacon and whole hog sausage.

In addition to the great tasting food (we sampled a beef jerky), the friendly atmosphere and welcome aroma are worth the trip.

AT THE MIDWEST BOTTLE AND SPECIALTY SHOP

There has been a renewed interest in bottle collections as of late and liquor bottles are gaining on the list of popularity.

The Midwest Bottle and Specialty Shop specializes in collectors' items. In the boutique one can find empty collectors' bottles from all over the United States — in fact, it is the only American shop of its kind — with bottles from all over. It also draws customers from all over.

Like the coin collectors' shop, the bottle shop both buys and sells — and it also sells memberships in the Ezra Brooks Limited Bottle Club, takes mail orders and even displays a smattering of antiques.

Some of the unusual bottles we found there include the china sewing machine that actually is a bottle, with the cork found right where the spool of thread is placed on the machine — and then there was the china bottle, intricately worked, that features a bartender leaning over a bar talking to a customer and right behind them, big as life, is a reward poster for none other than Jesse James! It is truly a unique bottle that was made for a special club.

Sentimental Nebraskans will find interest in the bottle that has been designed commemorating their state — and the shipment is to arrive soon!

AT HAVELOCK FURNITURE

Quality furniture at competitive prices are the key words for this Havelock store which is filled with an assortment of furniture and appliances to fit every room and need.

Elegant living room furniture in soft or bright velvets would suit the more formal home. One of our favorite pieces was a high back arm chair in velvet, which is available in alternating stripes of gold and avocado, or deep and light rose. A low back arm chair with a large and deep circular seat for a more traditional look also is on the floor.

All styles of furniture, including Early American, Spanish, French Provincial and Modern are exhibited. Hotpoint appliances and Zenith radios, televisions and stereos are also sold.

For an extra guest in your home, you may want to consider one of Havelock Furniture's hideabeds and housed on the lower level are dinette sets.

The finishing touches are often what add the real harmony to a home and this store plans to expand its selection of well hangings and prints in the fall to offer one of the largest in Lincoln.

AT LONDON AQUARIUM

Something was fishy the moment we walked into the tropical store — hundreds of fish surrounded us on all sides . . . we were no doubt in the right store

One tank that immediately drew our attention was the shop's 55-gallon display aquarium which is artfully arranged and contains many rare and unusual varieties of fish. We were told that the rather large, nervous fish which was isolated in an aquarium nearby was the notorious South American piranha—the flesh eating fish that is known to attack and devour man and large animals. Apparently he is not the most popular fish in the store; with his reputation and large price tag, aquarium fans stick to more "loveable" varieties.

One of the newest school of fish in the store are the elephant-nose fish who are black in color and sport a nose that for a small fish is rather lengthy. Another attention-getting fish was the glass cat and we had to admit that the name fits the see-through fish which is fascinating to watch since their entire skeletal structure is visible.

A friendly fellow, despite his name, is the red tail shark. The small dark grey fish lives up to his name in that he shows off a bright red tail — unless he is scared and then the color drains out until he feels more at ease.

AT TELE-TEK SERVICE TV AND APPLIANCES

We found just the thing for youngsters and adults interested in community goings on, it is a portable radio that picks up both AM and public radio frequencies; that includes business FM stations, fire and police communication

Tele-Tek carries another innovation which is known as the Quadasonic — a tape deck which provides four dimensional sound through four speakers that literally surround the listener.

In the color TV line we could not miss the Quasar models with their works in a drawer.

Then there is that trash masher which really keeps itself busy compacting garbage into neat little sacks. We heard that the masher saves people money on the West Coast where they are charged by amount the trash men pick up.

AT ALLIED REFRIGERATION APPLIANCE

An intriguing sign of welcome rests solidly in the window of this appliance store. It is an authentic antique ice box of beautifully carved wood with a bevelled mirror on the top door. We call it a sign of welcome, for in spite of its beauty, it reminds us of the days gone by when housekeeping was far from convenient.

We are a long way from that, with frost-free refrigerators, air conditioners, humidifiers and dehumidifiers, and the like. Allied Refrigeration Appliance store is equipped with all of these modern day conveniences, as well as much more. Televisions, washers and dryers and vacuum cleaners are just a few more.

If something should go wrong with one of the products, the repair shop is attached, so there is no need to go any further. All products are carried in leading brand names.

Abby: begin by changing appearance

DEAR ABBY: What does a single, normal, 24-year-old girl do when she looks masculine? I am 5 feet, 11 inches tall, but I am on the slim side — probably because I'm very athletic. I've always worn my hair short because I haven't the patience to handle a fussy hairdo, and short hair is more convenient for swimming, sailing and tennis. I wear practically no makeup and prefer tailored clothes.

I am friendly and have always been popular with boys and girls. I'm fairly intelligent (college graduate), I love fun but I am seldom asked for a date, so I do what other dateless girls do — spend my time with the girls. I've been told no men ask me out because they think I am "for girls." Nothing could be further from the truth, but a girl can't wear a sign to that effect. So, tell me, Dear Abby, how do I solve my problem?

TALL, DARK AND LONESOME

DEAR TALL: Change your image. Get some expert advice on restyling your hair, how to apply makeup artistically, and go in for more feminine attire. Come up with some tickets or an invitation somewhere and invite a man to be your escort. It won't solve your problem overnight, but it's a good beginning. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: I just read that letter from "VITO IN NAPOLI" who reads your column in the Rome Daily American. Vito says he is of Italian royal blood and would like to meet an American lady who owns a late model automobile. Then he requests all interested ladies send a photograph of the automobile! Love that neapolitan sense of humor.

It just so happens I, too, have Italian royalty in my background. (Province of Roma.) I am 5 feet 5 inches tall and am a well-proportioned 130 pounds, have long, golden brown hair, light skin and dark Italian eyes. Vito says he is 32. I prefer my gentlemen about 10 years older (Does he have a brother?)

Any eligible Italian bachelor or widower with honorable intentions who would like to meet a Binghamton (N.Y.) lady may send me his photograph together with his letter of introduction — written in Italian if he so wishes. I capeesh!

NO. 1 LINCOLN GATEWAY

on a tour of the shops

This week we journeyed out to Havelock and found several shops that caught our fancy—so this morning we will tell you about seven of those shops that may have just the items or products you have been looking for.

AT KEN MITZNER'S RARE COIN CO.

If coin collecting happens to be your interest, Ken Mitzner's is the place for you. The boutique has coins of all shapes and sizes—from the very rare to more or less common ones that may complete a collector's book.

In the shop we also found all of the necessary supplies for the collection including coin cleaners and magnifying glasses—in addition to many books all about coins and collecting.

To fit in with the coin collector's likes we found several table clocks—and the numerals are replaced by various United States coins.

Silver gifts of all varieties, and antiques, also are to be found in the Rare Coin Co. The antiques include flat ware and silver ware.

Mr. Metzger told us that he both buys and sells in his line of work and then pointed out his newest addition — a Bid Board. The soon-to-be in action project will work something like this — Mr. Metzger will place national and foreign coins on the board and then will advertise them nationwide, with the prize going to the highest bidder.

AT THE SAUSAGE KITCHEN

The aroma is the most discerning characteristic as one enters the Home of Big Daddy Sausage Kitchen. Country style sausages are all made right in the rear of the store. We were taken on a brief tour which included the cold storage and then the work area where the meats are stuffed, smoked and packaged for the market.

All of the 20 products are hickory smoked for especially good flavor. For a quick taste-tasting dinner you might want to try one of the pre-cooked hickory smoked-flavor turkey. It is ready to eat, and need only be bought and sliced.

One of the most enticing aspects of the Sausage Kitchen whose brand name by the way is 'Big Daddy', is the fact that all of the meats are home-made. This is a welcome treat today when such commodities are rare finds.

Some of your old time favorites can be found under the Big Daddy label, including German and Italian sausage, or all beef sausage. Other items include beef jerky, wieners, franks, bacon and whole hog sausage.

In addition to the great tasting food (we sampled a beef jerky), the friendly atmosphere and welcome aroma are worth the trip.

AT THE MIDWEST BOTTLE AND SPECIALTY SHOP

There has been a renewed interest in bottle collections as of late and liquor bottles are gaining on the list of popularity.

The Midwest Bottle and Specialty Shop specializes in collectors' items. In the boutique one can find empty collectors' bottles from all over the United States — in fact, it is the only American shop of its kind — with bottles from all over. It also draws customers from all over.

Like the coin collectors' shop, the bottle shop both buys and sells — and it also sells memberships in the Ezra Brooks Limited Bottle Club, takes mail orders and even displays a smattering of antiques.

Some of the unusual bottles we found there include the china sewing machine that actually is a bottle, with the cork found right where the spool of thread is placed on the machine — and then there was the china bottle, intricately worked, that features a bartender leaning over a bar talking to a customer and right behind them, big as life, is a reward poster for none other than Jesse James! It is truly a unique bottle that was made for a special club.

Sentimental Nebraskans will find interest in the bottle that has been designed commemorating their state — and the shipment is to arrive soon!

AT HAVELOCK FURNITURE

Quality furniture at competitive prices are the key words for this Havelock store which is filled with an assortment of furniture and appliances to fit every room and need.

Elegant living room furniture in soft or bright velvets would suit the more formal home. One of our favorite pieces was a high back arm chair in velvet, which is available in alternating stripes of gold and avocado, or deep and light rose. A low back arm chair with a large and deep circular seat for a more traditional look also is on the floor.

All styles of furniture, including Early American, Spanish, French Provincial and Modern are exhibited. Hotpoint appliances and Zenith radios, televisions and stereos are also sold.

For an extra guest in your home, you may want to consider one of Havelock Furniture's hideabeds and housed on the lower level are dinette sets.

The finishing touches are often what add the real harmony to a home and this store plans to expand its selection of well hangings and prints in the fall to offer one of the largest in Lincoln.

AT LONDON AQUARIUM

Something was fishy the moment we walked into the tropical store — hundreds of fish surrounded us on all sides . . . we were no doubt in the right store.

One tank that immediately drew our attention was the shop's 55-gallon display aquarium which is artfully arranged and contains many rare and unusual varieties of fish. We were told that the rather large, nervous fish which was isolated in an aquarium nearby was the notorious South American piranha—the flesh eating fish that is known to attack and devour man and large animals. Apparently he is not the most popular fish in the store; with his reputation and large price tag, aquarium fans stick to more "loveable" varieties.

One of the newest school of fish in the store are the elephant-nose fish who are black in color and sport a nose that for a small fish is rather lengthy. Another attention-getting fish was the glass cat and we had to admit that the name fits the see-through fish which is fascinating to watch since their entire skeletal structure is visible.

A friendly fellow, despite his name, is the red tail shark. The small dark grey fish lives up to his name in that he shows off a bright red tail — unless he is scared and then the color drains out until he feels more at ease.

AT TELE-TEK SERVICE TV AND APPLIANCES

We found just the thing for youngsters and adults interested in community goings on, it is a portable radio that picks up both AM and public radio frequencies; that includes business FM stations, fire and police communication.

Tele-Tek carries another innovation which is known as the Quadasonic — a tape deck which provides four dimensional sound through four speakers that literally surround the listener.

In the color TV line we could not miss the Quasar models with their works in a drawer.

Then there is that trash masher which really keeps itself busy compacting garbage into neat little sacks. We heard that the masher saves people money on the West Coast where they are charged by amount the trash men pick up.

AT ALLIED REFRIGERATION APPLIANCE

An intriguing sign of welcome rests solidly in the window of this appliance store. It is an authentic antique ice box of beautifully carved wood with a bevelled mirror on the top door. We call it a sign of welcome, for in spite of its beauty, it reminds us of the days gone by when housekeeping was far from convenient.

We are a long way from that, with frost-free refrigerators, air conditioners, humidifiers and dehumidifiers, and the like. Allied Refrigeration Appliance store is equipped with all of these modern day conveniences, as well as much more. Televisions, washers and dryers and vacuum cleaners are just a few more.

If something should go wrong with one of the products, the repair shop is attached, so there is no need to go any further. All products are carried in leading brand names.

Abby: begin by changing appearance

DEAR ABBY: What does a single, normal, 24-year-old girl do when she looks masculine? I am 5 feet, 11 inches tall, but I am on the slim side — probably because I'm very athletic. I've always worn my hair short because I haven't the patience to handle a fussy hairdo, and short hair is more convenient for swimming, sailing and tennis. I wear practically no makeup and prefer tailored clothes.

I am friendly and have always been popular with boys and girls. I'm fairly intelligent (college graduate), I love fun but I am seldom asked for a date, so I do what other dateless girls do — spend my time with the girls. I've been told no men ask me out because they think I am "for girls." Nothing could be further from the truth, but a girl can't wear a sign to that effect. So, tell me, Dear Abby, how do I solve my problem? TALL, DARK AND LONESOME

DEAR TALL: Change your image. Get some expert advice on restyling your hair, how to apply makeup artistically, and go in for more feminine attire. Rights Group Hears Criticism Of Abortion Law

By TOM EKVAL
Star Staff Writer

Abortions and housing occupied the attention of Human Rights Commission members Thursday.

The commission also decided to see what could be done to get a separate budget for the group approved in the city budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

Proponents of a liberalized abortion law appeared before the commission to urge it to support new legislation which they said would eliminate the "discriminatory" aspects of the present state statutes.

Discriminatory
Bruce Hamilton, executive director of the Lincoln Legal Services Society, contended that the present law on abortion — which he said dates back to the days of Nebraska as a territory — is discriminatory against low-income persons.

The law states that an abortion is allowed only when necessary to save the life of the mother.

"This is one more example of two separate systems of justice," Hamilton argued, saying that the rich have been able to get around the law while the poor are forced to carry through an unwanted pregnancy.

Suit Already Filed
Hamilton has already filed in federal district court a lawsuit challenging the validity of the state statute on grounds the law is an invasion of a person's rights of privacy, is vague and denies equal protection to all citizens.

He contended that the subject is a logical area for the commission to be concerned about.

There was some question among commission members about whether or not the commission could act and if so, how.

Kathy Braeman, representing the Lincoln chapter of National Organization of Women, told the commission that every woman should have the right to determine her own reproductive life.

But Mrs. Sally Daly, representing herself, argued that the unborn have a right to life.

Justification Doubtful
"I doubt one can justify terminating the life of an innocent person (for a woman) to pursue happiness," she said.

Chairman Bill Wilson ended discussion on the subject by appointing a committee to explore further whether the present state statute is discriminatory and the action for the group to take—if any. A legal opinion from the law department was also requested on whether the subject would fall within the scope of commission activities.

The committee is to make a report at the September meeting. Also tabled until next month was a motion that the commission in cooperation with the Lincoln Family Planning Center, study, draft and propose non-discriminatory legislation dealing with family planning and problem pregnancies.

In other action, the commission decided to have Lincoln Action Program officials and a city housing administrator's office spokesman appear before the group to discuss the city housing code and its implementation.

John Tobler, planning officer for LAP, said he feels the present code is inadequate in some areas and is not backed up with a sufficient resource of available housing to make a meaningful effort to improve housing.

Tobler said he is satisfied with most of the provisions of the housing code as a paper document.

Higher Rent
But, he added, the property owner, after making repairs, can increase the rent. As a result, the family is not helped if it cannot afford the higher rent, he said.

Both he and Gerald Henderson, city relocation officer, agreed there is a problem of inadequate housing to relocate low-income families.

"We have a crisis here for the low-income," Henderson said regarding the availability of housing.

Commission members felt a separate budget is necessary for the commission to carry out its activities. The group draws its funds from planning department and the mayor's budgets.

A budget had been prepared but not included in the mayor's proposed budget to the City Council.

City Council Winds Up Initial Review Of Budget

The City Council Thursday evening wound up its initial review of the city budget.

Council members will meet Monday morning to go over each department's budget again and tentatively decide whether to approve it, cut or make additions. Council Chairman Dick Hartsock said after the budget meeting.

Hartsock questioned Library Director Charles Dalrymple at length about the increase in the library budget.

$860,714 Proposed
A budget of $860,714 is proposed as compared to $823,020 for the present year.

The councilman said he thought that with the opening of the two branch libraries and the closing of four others, library costs should go down. Dalrymple said both new libraries are scheduled to open Sept. 1 with the Havelock, University Place, College View and Southeast temporary unit scheduled to close that date.

Dalrymple replied that spiraling costs have forced the budget increase.

He said taxpayers will be getting more service, though, for the dollar.

Longer Hours
The library director also said that with the two new libraries, patrons in the areas will get more library service than that afforded by the libraries to be closed and longer hours of operation.

Councilman Merle Hale also quizzed Dalrymple why a self-supporting roof was used for the new branch libraries.

Hale said he had been told by one contractor this type of construction was far more expensive than the use of columns to support the roof.

Easier Access
Dalrymple said the self-supporting roof would make access to books easier.

Hale said he understood the columns could be hidden in the shelving and in those areas replace shelves, resulting in a lower construction cost.

"I feel we could have built cheaper ones," the councilman said.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis pointed out that the council has no control at all over the type of library buildings built; the decision is solely with the Library Board.

Dalrymple said the square foot cost of the new buildings is far less than that for libraries elsewhere in this region of the country.

Mrs. Boosalis also asked why no funds were included for extending library service to the Arnold Heights area.

Report On Needs

The library director said the Library Board has received a report detailing areas of service need, adding that the next library service could well go to that area. Possibly a relocatable library unit could be placed there, he said. No time indication was given for library service to that area.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf Thursday presented the council with his recommendation of salary increases for department heads and other top city officials.

Schwartzkopf proposed 5% increases except for Personnel Director Walt Mitchell. Corporation Counsel Ralph Nelson, Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith and Library Director Charles Dalrymple, who were recommended for 2½% increases.

Mayor's Pay Not Set

Finance Director James Mallon said the increases would up the budget slightly more than $6,000. The council must still set the mayor's salary, which must be higher than that for any department head.

Budgets reviewed Thursday were those of the mayor, Pershing Municipal Auditorium, library system and Lincoln General Hospital.

Schwartzkopf said he has included funds in his schools and conferences account to attend the National League of Cities meeting in Hawaii.

Auditorium Manager Ike Hoig told council members he is requesting an additional $2,100 for a scrubbing machine in addition to the proposed budget of $287,405, up almost $17,000 from the present fiscal year.

The tentative increase approved by the council plus the hike in department head salaries would increase the total budget to date by slightly more than $34,000.

Loss Reported

Boston (AP)—Houghton, Mifflin Co., book publishers, reported a loss of $360,418 or 10 cents per share on $21 million in sales for the first six months of 1971.

Varner Wants Interim President Designated

University of Nebraska Chancellor D. B. Varner Thursday said he plans to ask the regents Saturday to designate an interim president for the Lincoln campuses.

Or, he said, he may ask the board to give him the authority to name an interim campus chief before fall classes start Sept. 1.

President Joseph Soshnik, who announced his resignation in the spring, will leave the job by the end of the month to join an investment banking firm in Omaha.

Varner said it would be "useful" to have an interim president by the time Soshnik leaves, adding he believes there is little hope of having a permanent successor here by that time.

Challenge To Agency Shop Is Dismissed

A lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of Nebraska's prohibition against the agency shop has been dismissed by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis, Mo.

The agency shop prohibition was added to the Nebraska right to work statute by the 1961 State Legislature. Agency shop agreements do not require employees to join a labor union, but instead require non-labor workers to make regular payments to the union in an amount equal to the dues and fees paid by union members.

The case, filed against the State of Nebraska by the Nebraska AFL-CIO, was dismissed last year in the Federal District Court in Omaha, on grounds the labor organization did not have the proper standing to bring the suit and that its complaint did not present a case of actual controversy.

The appeals court said that without specific language found or sought to be included in a labor contract, the courts "will not draw such a line in the absence of a specific case."

Rights Group Hears Criticism Of Abortion Law

By TOM EKVAL
Star Staff Writer

Abortions and housing occupied the attention of Human Rights Commission members Thursday.

The commission also decided to see what could be done to get a separate budget for the group approved in the city budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

Proponents of a liberalized abortion law appeared before the commission to urge it to support new legislation which they said would eliminate the "discriminatory" aspects of the present state statutes.

Discriminatory

Bruce Hamilton, executive director of the Lincoln Legal Services Society, contended that the present law on abortion — which he said dates back to the days of Nebraska as a territory — is discriminatory against low-income persons.

The law states that an abortion is allowed only when necessary to save the life of the mother.

"This is one more example of two separate systems of justice," Hamilton argued, saying that the rich have been able to get around the law while the poor are forced to carry through an unwanted pregnancy.

Suit Already Filed

Hamilton has already filed in federal district court a lawsuit challenging the validity of the state statute on grounds the law is an invasion of a person's rights of privacy, is vague and denies equal protection to all citizens.

He contended that the subject is a logical area for the commission to be concerned about.

There was some question among commission members about whether or not the commission could act and if so, how.

Kathy Braeman, representing the Lincoln chapter of National Organization of Women, told the commission that every woman should have the right to determine her own reproductive life.

But Mrs. Sally Daly, representing herself, argued that the unborn have a right to life.

Justification Doubtful

"I doubt one can justify terminating the life of an innocent person (for a woman) to pursue happiness," she said.

Chairman Bill Wilson ended discussion on the subject by appointing a committee to explore further whether the present state statute is discriminatory and the action for the group to take—if any.

A legal opinion from the law department was also requested on whether the subject would fall within the scope of commission activities.

The committee is to make a report at the September meeting.

Also tabled until next month was a motion that the commission in cooperation with the Lincoln Family Planning Center study, draft and propose non-discriminatory legislation dealing with family planning and problem pregnancies.

In other action, the commission decided to have Lincoln Action Program officials and a city housing administrator's office spokesman appear before the group to discuss the city housing code and its implementation.

John Tobler, planning officer for LAP, said he feels the present code is inadequate in some areas and is not backed up with a sufficient resource of available housing to make a meaningful effort to improve housing.

Tobler said he is satisfied with most of the provisions of the housing code as a paper document.

Higher Rent

But, he added, the property owner, after making repairs, can increase the rent. As a result, the family is not helped if it cannot afford the higher rent, he said.

Both he and Gerald Henderson, city relocation officer, agreed there is a problem of inadequate housing to relocate low-income families.

"We have a crisis here for low-income," Henderson said regarding the availability of housing.

Commission members felt a separate budget is necessary for the commission to carry out its activities. The group draws its funds from planning department and the mayor's budgets.

A budget had been prepared but not included in the mayor's proposed budget to the City Council.

Madison County Budget Is Hiked

Madison (P) — The Madison County commissioners have adopted a $1,850,489 budget for the fiscal year which began July 1.

The budget is $85,921 higher than that adopted by the county for the last fiscal year.

Appropriations to five departments were trimmed by a total of $8,420 before final adoption.

City Council Winds Up Initial Review Of Budget

The City Council Thursday evening wound up its initial review of the city budget.

Council members will meet Monday morning to go over each department's budget again and tentatively decide whether to approve it, cut or make additions.

Chairman Dick Hartsock said after the budget meeting.

Hartsock questioned Library Director Charles Dalrymple at length about the increase in the library budget.

$860,714 Proposed

A budget of $860,714 is proposed as compared to $823,020 for the present year.

The councilman said he thought that with the opening of the two branch libraries and the closing of four others, library costs should go down.

Dalrymple said both new libraries are scheduled to open Sept. 1 with the Havelock, University Place, College View and Southeast temporary unit scheduled to close that date.

Dalrymple replied that spiraling costs have forced the budget increase.

He said taxpayers will be getting more service, though, for the dollar.

Longer Hours

The library director also said that with the two new libraries, patrons in the areas will get more library service than that afforded by the libraries to be closed and longer hours of operation.

Councilman Merle Hale also quizzed Dalrymple why a self-supporting roof was used for the new branch libraries.

Hale said he had been told by one contractor this type of construction was far more expensive than the use of columns to support the roof.

Easier Access

Dalrymple said the self-supporting roof would make access to books easier.

Hale said he understood the columns could be hidden in the shelving and in those areas replace shelves, resulting in a lower construction cost.

"I feel we could have built cheaper ones," the councilman said.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis pointed out that the council has no control at all over the type of library buildings built; the decision is solely with the Library Board.

Dalrymple said the square foot cost of the new buildings is far less than that for libraries elsewhere in this region of the country.

Mrs. Boosalis also asked why no funds were included for extending library service to the Arnold Heights area.

Report On Needs

The library director said the Library Board has received a report detailing areas of service need, adding that the next library service could well go to that area.

Possibly a relocatable library unit could be placed there, he said. No time indication was given for library service to that area.

Mayor's Pay Not Set

Finance Director James Mallon said the increases would up the budget slightly more than $6,000. The council must still set the mayor's salary, which must be higher than that for any department head.

Budgets reviewed Thursday were those of the mayor, Pershing Municipal Auditorium, library system and Lincoln General Hospital.

Schwartzkopf said he has included funds in his schools and conferences account to attend the National League of Cities meeting in Hawaii.

Auditorium Manager Ike Hoig told council members he is requesting an additional $2,100 for a scrubbing machine in addition to the proposed budget of $287,405, up almost $17,000 from the present fiscal year.

The tentative increase approved by the council plus the hike in department head salaries would increase the total budget to date by slightly more than $34,000.

Loss Reported

Boston (P) — Houghton, Mifflin Co., book publishers, reported a loss of $360,418 or 10 cents per share on $21 million in sales for the first six months of 1971.

Varner Wants Interim President Designated

University of Nebraska Chancellor D. B. Varner Thursday said he plans to ask the regents Saturday to designate an interim president for the Lincoln campuses.

Or, he said, he may ask the board to give him the authority to name an interim campus chief before fall classes start Sept. 1.

President Joseph Soshnik, who announced his resignation in the spring, will leave the job by the end of the month to join an investment banking firm in Omaha.

Varner said it would be "useful" to have an interim president by the time Soshnik leaves, adding he believes there is little hope of having a permanent successor here by that time.

The chancellor, who just returned from a brief vacation, said several persons are still under consideration for job of president.

To his knowledge, he said, no names had been added to the list, believed to be seven, of candidates to succeed Soshnik. The list was compiled by a presidential search committee of students, faculty members and administrators.

Varner declined to identify who he might suggest as an interim president while the search continues.

He said there are several people on the campus who are both "competent and able" to handle the job.

The regents will meet Saturday at 10 a.m. in Scotts-bluff.

Winnebago Indians Plan March Here

Winnebago (UPI) —Members of the Winnebago Indian Tribe will stage a march on the State Capitol in Lincoln Friday to protest what they term "inadequate law enforcement and biased and prejudiced officers."

The march will begin at the Lincoln Indian headquarters at 9th and O Sts. and continue to the south side of the Capitol, in front of the governor's mansion.

A tribal spokesman here said they would take along the community's "delapidated" police car, which they will seek to auction off to the public.

"So far, there have been no takers," the spokesman said. "We may have to leave it in front of the governor's mansion."

The major need, the Winnebago spokesman continued, was for more funds to upgrade the law enforcement in the area.

A meeting was slated between members of the State Crime Commission and other government officials.

The Indians said they had received a parade permit from the city.

THORNTON QUILTS POST

John Thornton has resigned, effective last Tuesday, as Gov. J. J. Exon's "agent" in the newly-created State Personnel Department.

Thornton said he felt the resignation was necessary because he felt he could not afford to turn down other job offers while waiting for Exon to name a state personnel director.

"It had become obvious my chances weren't too good for appointment as director of the department," he said.

Thornton was appointed by Gov. Norbert Tiemann to head the state personnel office. The office was elevated to department status July 1 by a bill passed by the 1971 Legislature.

However, since Exon had not named a director of the department, he retained Thornton to act as the governor's "agent" while the hunt for a permanent director was conducted.

Thornton has taken a position as administrative assistant to Ben Novicoff, presiding judge of the Workmen's Compensation Court.

director is selected sometime in mid-September.

Morton, assistant director of the hospital since April of 1970, was named to the post after the July 31 retirement of director Dr. J. Melvin Boykin.

Morton said he is not in line for the permanent position. Dr. Boykin was to be succeeded by the late Dr. Lad J. Kucera, who died July 19 of an apparent heart attack while attending a conference in Lincoln. Mr. Kucera was the former director at the Grand Island VA Hospital.

THORNTON QUILTS POST

John Thornton has resigned, effective last Tuesday, as Gov. J. J. Exon's "agent" in the newly-created State Personnel Department.

Thornton said he felt the resignation was necessary because he felt he could not afford to turn down other job offers while waiting for Exon to name a state personnel director.

"It had become obvious my chances weren't too good for appointment as director of the department," he said.

Thornton was appointed by Gov. Norbert Tiemann to head the state personnel office. The office was elevated to department status July 1 by a bill passed by the 1971 Legislature.

However, since Exon had not named a director of the department, he retained Thornton to act as the governor's "agent" while the hunt for a permanent director was conducted.

Thornton has taken a position as administrative assistant to Ben Novicoff, presiding judge of the Workmen's Compensation Court.

Morton Named Acting Director For VA Hospital

Gaylord Morton has been named to serve as acting director of the Lincoln Veterans Hospital until a permanent director is selected sometime in mid-September.

Morton, assistant director of the hospital since April of 1970, was named to the post after the July 31 retirement of director Dr. J. Melvin Boykin.

Morton said he is not in line for the permanent position.

Dr. Boykin was to be succeeded by the late Dr. Lad J. Kucera, who died July 19 of an apparent heart attack while attending a conference in Lincoln. Mr. Kucera was the former director at the Grand Island VA Hospital.

Col. Liggett Explains Draft Status In Letter

State Selective Service Director Col. Lee Liggett said Thursday he has mailed a one-page explanatory letter to Nebraska men who are eligible for the draft to explain that the Selective Service system has not gone out of business.

Liggett said that since the old draft law expired, meaning the Selective Service has no authority to induct men, many persons have wondered about the status of the Selective Service system.

Liggett explained that the draft lottery held in Washington Thursday affects those men born during 1952 but said they could not be inducted until 1972, assuming Congress passes a new draft law by then.

He said the lottery was for the purpose of letting young men know where they stand in the lottery order when the new draft law is passed.

Skaters May Seek Different Host City

A meeting in San Diego, Calif., this December will determine whether or not Lincoln will be host for the seventh time of the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association of America (RSROA) 1972 skating championships.

RSROA president Seth Scott of Lincoln, said Ft. Worth, Tex., Fresno, Calif., Louisville, Ky., Little Rock, Ark., and Denver, Colo., have indicated an interest in hosting the 1972 championships next summer. He added that the December meeting of the board of directors will also consider a recommendation from the executive committee not to hold the 1972 championships in Lincoln.

Scott said Lincoln has had a high acceptance from skaters primarily because it is safe for children to walk on the streets; is mid-way between the coasts and has good skating facilities. On the other hand, Scott said, some skaters do not want to use their vacation time every year to come to the same city.

Tension arose this year when adults attending the competition could not find a place to be together to discuss the evening's events — "much the same as Nebraskans gather following a Big Red football game to visit about the plays and mistakes, the successes and referees calls," C. E. Cahill, RSROA executive director said.

"Our 'football game' ends daily about 11:30 p.m. at the Pershing Auditorium and there is simply no place in Lincoln this year where our people can visit a few hours collectively as there has been in the past years," he said, adding "the annual American Roller Skating Championship is the highlight of our athletic year in skating."

Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said that he was sorry to hear that the executive committee of the RSROA had decided to take the championships out of the city next year, adding, "I hope that they will reconsider."

RSROA is a family-type organization and Lincoln is a family-type city with much to offer them in retaining the championships here," he said. He emphasized that he believes that any problems dealing with the accommodations for the adults during their social hours can be remedied and should not be the sole basis for leaving Lincoln.

"I would gladly offer the assistance of my office to try and work out problems that have caused the RSROA to decide to leave Lincoln," he said. He said he feels Lincoln's central geographical location in the country makes it particularly attractive to this family-type organization.

Cahill said, "We must respond to the demands of our organization and if we are unable to work out a difficulty in Lincoln, then we must locate the championships in a community where we can accommodate the wishes of our parents, skating teachers and rink owners."

In the cool morning — Jamaica turning green and the sea growing rich blue — we go to "Mobay" to shop at Kelly Wong's.

There's a supermarket in a new section called Westgate. But Kelly Wong's Super-service is just off the main square and is lively.

It's a jam-packed little store — you step around piles of cans. Deliveries are plunked down in your path. It must be fiercely competitive for it's full of black Jamaicans. There's a Jamaican woman at the checkout counter.

Kelly Wong, Cantonese. He came here 40 years ago. Sits at a battered desk nudged into the corner. His eyes miss nothing. He changes dollars U.S. to dollars Jamaica in his head like a flash.

He watches the street. The traffic. The checker. The customers.

He oozes that Cantonese love of business. You see it in overseas Chinese in the Caribbean. In papa-mama stores in South Pacific islands. In sari-sari stores in the Philippines. And on Grant avenue in San Francisco.

The overseas Cantonese are the world's greatest merchants. I expect Kelly Wong is near the top of the list.

He can speak English for you and me. He can drop into the Jamaica British-accented patois.

"What dat mahn got deh? What him got?"

It's a sentimental journey to Kelly Wong's. Ten years ago — or was it twelve? — Kelly and I went into a great philanthropical venture.

The road to hell is paved with good intentions. We furnished some of the better paving stones.

I was at Casa Montego, drinking Blue Mountain coffee for the first time. Probably the best coffee in the world.

I went downtown to buy some to take home. The first store I found was Kelly's Superservice.

I bought a pound. I said: "Kelly, can you SHIP this stuff for a dollar?"

"Suah," said Kelly. "During the war we shipped lots of sugar to people in England."

A newspaper column offering the world's GREATEST coffee for a dollar brought Kelly ten thousand letters!

I didn't know that "a dollar" is magic. Hundreds of people will send for ANYTHING for a dollar. THOUSANDS of people will send for coffee. Dollar plus coffee is instance success.)

Naturally, Kelly Wong would not fill these orders instantly. Not and run Kelley's Superservice.

There were long delays — I got a lot of hot letters: "Apparently you are running some kind of flim-flam..."

I send Kelly some money. I wired: "Hire packers."

It was one of those things that make you wake in the night. Sweating. In the midst of this, the Jamaica coffee board was astonished. They raised the price per pound 12 cents!

Kelly Wong sent the coffee plus a letter asking for 12 cents more.

Now the original writers were SURE I was in some racket.

I hadn't seen Kelly since. I went down and I bought a bunch of groceries and we shook hands and agreed it was one of the wild times.

For a store that does business in Jamaican pennies and dimes, Kelly Wong has done well.

He said: "Last year I took a trip around the world. Went to Hong Kong to see my parents. I hadn't seen them for 40 years. I got them a house."

I paid the girl in U.S. dollars. Kelly caught the flash of green and called it out in Jamaican. As fast as the new electronic calculators.

In the cool morning — Jamaica turning green and the sea growing rich blue — we go to "Mobay" to shop at Kelly Wong's.

There's a supermarket in a new section called Westgate. But Kelly Wong's Super-service is just off the main square and is lively.

It's a jam-packed little store — you step around piles of cans. Deliveries are plunked down in your path. It must be fiercely competitive for it's full of black Jamaicans. There's a Jamaican woman at the checkout counter.

Kelly Wong, Cantonese. He came here 40 years ago. Sits at a battered desk nudged into the corner. His eyes miss nothing. He changes dollars U.S. to dollars Jamaica in his head like a flash.

He watches the street. The traffic. The checker. The customers.

He oozes that Cantonese love of business. You see it in overseas Chinese in the Caribbean. In papa-mama stores in South Pacific islands. In sari-sari stores in the Philippines. And on Grant Avenue in San Francisco.

The overseas Cantonese are the world's greatest merchants. I expect Kelly Wong is near the top of the list.

He can speak English for you and me. He can drop into the Jamaica British-accented patois.

"What dat mahn got deh? What him got?"

It's a sentimental journey to Kelly Wong's. Ten years ago — or was it twelve? — Kelly and I went into a great philanthropical venture.

The road to hell is paved with good intentions. We furnished some of the better paving stones.

I was at Casa Montego, drinking Blue Mountain coffee for the first time. Probably the best coffee in the world.

I went downtown to buy some to take home. The first store I found was Kelly's Superservice.

I bought a pound. I said: "Kelly, can you SHIP this stuff for a dollar?"

"Suah," said Kelly. "During the war we shipped lots of sugar to people in England."

A newspaper column offering the world's GREATEST coffee for a dollar brought Kelly ten thousand letters!

I didn't know that "a dollar" is magic. Hundreds of people will send for ANYTHING for a dollar. THOUSANDS of people will send for coffee. Dollar plus coffee is instant success.)

Naturally, Kelly Wong would not fill these orders instantly. Not and run Kelly's Superservice.

There were long delays — I got a lot of hot letters: "Apparently you are running some kind of flim-flam..."

I send Kelly some money. I wired: "Hire packers."

It was one of those things that make you wake in the night. Sweating. In the midst of this, the Jamaica coffee board was astonished. They raised the price per pound 12 cents!

Kelly Wong sent the coffee plus a letter asking for 12 cents more.

Now the original writers were SURE I was in some racket.

I hadn't seen Kelly since. I went down and I bought a bunch of groceries and we shook hands and agreed it was one of the wild times.

Harvey Hated OTB

New York — Once upon a time there was an illegal bookie named Harvey The Horse who hated OTB. He said it was unfair competition. He said it was gambling socialism. He said it was a special vehicle for Howard Samuels, whom he considered, translating informally, an insufferable prig. He said: "What really ripped me up inside was when he started going around with that speech about how I wanted to be your governor, but here I am your bookmaker. Like it was a comedown being a bookie instead of governor."

Harvey's wife, Martha the Mare, says that Harvey's pride was damaged when Samuels began referring to himself as Howie The Horse. And Harvey's partner, Big Karim, says they were very upset when the precinct used OTB as an excuse to raise pay-offs. Harvey, growing bitter, watched OTB toe-dance upon the slippery rocks of failure and scandal. "Fall," he would gasp, but OTB danced on.

And then, the fateful day, Aug. 3, 1971. OTB announced it would never waltz on a bet.

At first, Harvey had heart pains and retired to stew. How could such an announcement be necessary? But then he read on: According to state law, he learned, if OTB collected bets and was unable to get them to a track in time it could 1) cancel all bets, 2) form its own parimutuel pool, or 3) hold the action and pay off at track odds, in effect acting as bookmaker.

For the first time in months, Harvey The Horse smiled.

The high points of the following months belong to history. Mayor Lindsay, moving on, privately offered the city to Samuels, who said he had to ask his wife. When she finally accepted, slogans were created — "Bet Samuels" and "It pays off to back a winner." Buttons were ordered and Samuels prepared to resign from OTB and announce his candidacy for mayor. Harvey found out just in time.

Race Was To Be Fixed

Step No. 1 — Big Karim's negotiator, Great Scott, was sent out to fix a horse race. It had been so many years since he had fixed a race, the entire scheme nearly collapsed here. Great Scott just walked into the jockey room waving money and handing out slips of paper denoting the order of finish. The jockeys became furious, maintaining they were professional men and union members to boot. They insisted upon electing their own order of finish. Big Karim himself had to come down and work out final arrangements.

Step No. 2 — One of the most prestigious rumor organizations was hired to infiltrate three neighborhoods that demographers considered crucial to Samuels' chances of winning the nomination. The message was this: Put the rent on Letter D in the sixth.

Step No. 3 — The fixed race, which was slated for the day before Samuels' announcement, brought out an incredible flood of betting money. Through the day, Harvey The Horse drove among the three neighborhoods, chuckling through his nose at the lines snaking around each OTB parlor. He began to laugh as the computers sent the betting data to central headquarters. And then, as headquarters tallied them and prepared to send them into the track's pari-mutuel pool, Harvey drew a finger across his throat. Somewhere between the OTB headquarters and the track, the data disappeared. It has never been clearly established whether they were erased from the tape, snipped off, or diverted, but they never got to the track.

The jockeys, honorable men, finished in proper order. The crowd at the track, generally unaware of the fix, did not favor No. 4, which paid off at $36.40 for $2. OTB was stuck with $1.3 million in winning bets, and owed $23.7 million out of its own pocket.

"Poor Howie got two choices," said Harvey The Horse that very night. "He can cancel the bets, say there was a mistake, and the city can't take that kind of loss. There goes the neighborhoods and the election. Who wants a welsher in city hall?"

"Or he can pay off, be a man about it. What the hell, that's what it means to be a bookie. Win some, lose some."

Cuban Snaps World Mark In Pan-Am's Triple Jump

Cali, Colombia (AP) — Pedro Perez of Cuba shattered the world record in the triple jump with a magnificent leap of 57 feet, 1 inch Thursday night but nothing could stem the cascade of U.S. gold medals in track and field's closing scene of the Pan American Games.

Frank Shorter, a 130-pound string of guts and gristle from Boulder, Colo., started the windfall with a victory in the marathon — adding it to a

The women's pentathlon — the female version of the men's decathlon — went to Debbie Van Kiebel, a 17-year-old Canadian and the best the United States could do was fourth by Marilyn King of Fremont, Calif.

Perez' triple jump was the lone world record beaten during these hemispheric Olympics. Don Quarrie tied the world mark in the 200 meters with 19.81 seconds.

Perez' leap broke the mark of 57½ set by the Soviet Union's Viktor Saneyev in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City.

That feat plus the 55-2½ by Nelson Prudencia of Brazil smashed the longest Pan American track and field record that remained in the book — the 54-4 jump of Brazil's Adhemar Dasilva in 1955. John Craft of Charleston, Ill., got the bronze with 53-6½.

In addition to the track medals, the United States picked up three golds, four silvers and four bronzes in gymnastics where John Crosby, a 20-year-old English major from New York City, made the greatest haul with two golds, three silvers and a bronze in individual events.

In all, Crosby will be carrying home a total of eight medals, having gained two to Cuba and Cuba's Jorge Rodriguez in the overall.

A 27-year-old mechanical engineer from River Forest, Ill., Mike Karchut took three gold medals and a silver in light heavyweight weightlifting, hoisting a Pan American record of 1,039½ total pounds.

SIX TUMBLE DURING MISHAP

... Jockies Escape Serious Injury In Fairgrounds Spill

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Four jockeys escaped serious injury Thursday at the State Fairgrounds during a six-horse spill that left one horse dead and only two of the eight finishing the race.

Bill Stallings and John Rettele were treated and released at a Lincoln hospital late Thursday night, while Fred Ecoffey and Joe Pacheco were held overnight for observation.

As Camtrac, ridden by Terry Barnes, was leading the pack into the first turn of the sixth race, Famous Dancer, running behind Camtrac, suddenly collapsed, breaking both front legs. Sir Snick, with Ecoffey aboard, was the first to tumble into the fallen Famous Dancer.

Ecoffey was thrown and then three other horses and riders were thrown during the mishap — Stallings on Miss Fleet Abbey, Rettele on Dood's Choice and Robert Young on Pioneer Rex.

Camtrac, in front, wasn't bothered and finished first in the 5½-furlong scamper while Faire Tiger, with Marvin Coleman up, went wide to avoid the falling horses and jockeys and placed second. Those were the only two horses finishing with riders.

Stallings, Rettele and Ecoffey were immediately taken to a local hospital following the mishap, while Pacheco was taken to the hospital a short time later after complaining of head bruises.

Ecoffey and Pacheco both apparently suffered no broken bones and were listed in good condition by a hospital spokesman late Thursday night.

Dave King, aboard Famous Dancer, complained of hip and back bruises, but was not taken to the hospital.

"The horse just fell and I was trying to hold it up," King said. "If things like that don't scare you, you're an idiot."

A track spokesman said Famous Dancer was dead when officials reached the animal as the 7-year-old gelding broke his neck while falling.

"My horse (Pioneer Rex) ran over the other ones before I realized what was happening," said Young. "Then I saw riders falling all over the place and that's when I realized what had happened. It's the worst spill I've seen in six years."

After Famous Dancer tumbled, Pacheco, on Mot Zie, admitted, "I didn't have a chance — I must have bounced around 10 times or so."

Pacheco said it appeared as if King was trying to hold his horse up to avoid colliding with the others, but the animal just collapsed.

Although the mishap caused 12 riding changes in the last three races, Bob Bates, clerk of scales, said there were plenty of volunteers for the assignments and he had no trouble finding riders. Bates termed it one of worst collisions he's seen in 10 years as a track official.

Going into the race, Stallings had steered four of his five mounts into the winner's circle. He captured both halves of the daily double with Rusty Gray in the first and Chari Cat in the second and guided Dusky Ruler in the fourth and Marble Stream in the fifth.

Losing Wagers

Fail To Bother

Aunt Priscilla

Losing both my $2 win tickets didn't bother me at all Thursday at the Fairgrounds since the most important thing — the riders — were apparently all right after that a w u f l spill in the sixth race.

That was one of the worst accidents I've ever seen at a horse track and it certainly shows the danger the jockeys face each and every time they race a horse.

So when my $100 spree fund sunk to $142 after the sixth straight losing day, it didn't make me sad at all. Today, I'm going to place my $2 win tickets on Nail Bluff in eighth and O'Jeta in the ninth.

Local Legion Meet Off Ground

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

The rain-delayed Lincoln area Midget and Junior American Legion baseball tournaments finally got underway at Sherman Field Thursday.

In the single elimination Midget tourney Judds Brothers of Lincoln sidelined Fairbury, 3-1, and Werner Electric ousted Gateway, 8-5.

Three first-round contests in the double elimination Junior meet saw National Bank of Commerce sweep past Lincoln Mutual Life, 10-4, Gerry's Sports Shop blank Fairbury, 4-0, and First National Bank edge Beatrice, 3-1.

In the morning opener the Fairbury Midgets grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning on two walks and a single by Kim Kujath, but Judds Brothers tallied two runs in the second on a pair of walks, three passed balls and a wild pitch.

The winners added an insurance run in the fourth on a double by winning pitcher Terry Dopp.

Werner Electric staged what proved to be a winning four-run rally in the fifth inning of its game with Gateway on singles by Bob Folsom and Rick Cutshall, with the aid of a walk and three Gateway errors.

NBC and Lincoln Mutual were deadlocked at 4-4 in the bottom on the third frame when NBC pitcher Doug McLeese drove home catcher Jim Neal. Then the Banker nine pushed across three insurance runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth on the way to victory.

A rare triple play highlighted the game. Lincoln Mutual opened the eighth inning with a single and a walk, but Tom Rempe smashed a liner to NBC third sacker Chuck Arkfeld, who started the ball around the infield to double off both runners.

Gene Lessman singled and scored in the second inning, then walked and tallied in the fourth before Gerry's cushioned the lead with two more runs in the final frame on a single by Steve Kontas with the aid of a pair of Fairbury errors.

Beatrice continually threatened against First National in the nightcap contest, leaving 13 runners stranded, but could only manage a single tally in the seventh on back-to-back doubles by Paul Cramer and Jerry Kurl.

Cramer had a perfect 4-4 night at the plate for the losers, who outlived the winners, 8-7.

Winning pitcher Bruce Batterman played a role in all three First National runs. His two-out sinking fly to center field was dropped in the fourth frame to allow the first two runs. Then he cleanly singled catcher Mark Michel home with the other tally in the sixth.

Today's five-game schedule opens at 10 a.m. when Beatrice faces the Lincoln Thunderbolts in a Midget contest, followed by a Judds Brothers-Werner Electric clash.

Junior tourney action picks up at 3 p.m. with a losers round game between Lincoln Mutual and Fairbury. NBC meets Aamco at 5:30, while Gerry's and First National conclude the day's slate at 8.

Sod Webworms are the larvae of lawn moths. The adults are small, whitish or gray moths (or millers) folding their wings closely about their bodies when at rest. They hide in the shrubbery during day, and during the early evening, they fly over the grass scattering their eggs over the lawn. The Sod Webworm is about 3/4-inch long, light brown, and their bodies are covered with fine hairs. The Sod Webworms feed on the crown of the grass, which destroys the plant. When this happens, brown spots (dead grass) appear in the lawn.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you right.
